

HERE AND THERE

Swedes 'Dag' Instead Of Dig

ROBERT IDDINGS AND Inger Blomfelt were discussing Inger's saying of "I dug you." Robert explained, "Inger, even though it is in the past tense that phrase doesn't change."
"Past tense?" asked Inger. "Yes, I know—dig, dag, dug."

"BRENDA, ARE YOU going to the fair this week?" questioned Pam Treece.

"I doubt it seriously," said Brenda Smith. "It's so dusty out there, and besides, all those fair people are artists, anyway."

"Artists?" asked Pam.
"Yes, they are doing well in drawing flies," quipped Brenda.

IN SECOND PERIOD French, Mrs. Deese was trying to figure out the percentage of boys and girls. The class was noisy and Mrs. Deese said, "If ya'll don't be quiet while I try to work, you just watch me and I won't be quiet for you when you want me to."

Bryan Fox quipped, "Yes, you will give us a pop dictation."

"LYDIA, WHY ARE you wearing a Nixon and Kennedy button?" asked Betsy Holbrook.

With a doubtful look on her face, Lydia replied, "I'm undecided."

MR. HATLEY, AFTER telling a corny joke, turned to Jerry Holt who had failed to catch the joke and said, "That was a pretty good joke, wasn't it, Jerry?"
Jerry answered, "Well, they are getting a little bit better."

HAVING BEEN ASKED by Miss Caughman to draw a figure on the board in solid geometry the other day, Ronnie Herrin replied, "I'll try!"
Miss Caughman looked up and solemnly replied, "Well, the angels can do no more!"

JERRY TUCKER, UPON meeting a fine little girl at the fair, was discussing his high school life.

"Have you lived in Albemarle all of your life?" she inquired.
"Oh no!" Jerry quipped. "Not yet!"

DISCUSSING INSURANCE POLICIES was the center of attraction in fifth period economics class. Margaret Ann Furr asked Steve Surratt just what a life insurance policy was.

"Marge, that happens to be a guarantee to go to heaven," was Steve's reply.

LOUISE FURR, AFTER being tapped into the National Honor Society, sat close in her seat and began to cry.

Pam Sells, sitting on one side of her, excitedly said, "Best you get up and go on the stage before I do, Louise."

SUZANNE SWINDELL RUSHED into English and hurried to Mike Wolfe's desk.

"Mike," she breathlessly started, "did you see that dirty look she gave you?"

"Who?" asked Mike anxiously.
"Mother Nature," laughed Suzanne.

WHILE TRYING TO talk Miss Caughman out of a solid geometry test, Bill Burbage commented, "Miss Caughman, I'll get my mother to vote for Kennedy."
To this Fred Stokes quickly retorted, "I'll even get Nixon to vote for Kennedy."

MRS. DEESE, FUSSING at Roger Morris for misbehaving in class, said, "Roger, I'm going to get you a play pen!"
Gerald Holt responded, "Yes, get Roger and Connie each one."
Connie immediately replied, "You can play in my pen if you want to, Gerald."

WHO'S WHO

ROBERT IDDINGS

Not gold, but something just as valuable called success seems to be produced by the "Midas touch" of Robert Iddings, the deserving boy featured in this issue of Who's Who.

This "touch of success" of Robert's certainly didn't come as a gift, but as a result of willingness to work hard to accomplish things that would make even Ol' King Midas turn green with envy.

Presently, Robert is serving as president of the Albemarle National Honor Society. This, along with the fact that he served as a Junior Marshal is enough to convince anyone that his grades are tops.

In addition, Robert is a member of the Booster's Club, Black Masque, Modern Music Masters, Hi-Y, and is now serving as co-editor of the photography staff of the annual.

During his Junior year, Robert served as president of his class and was selected as an American Field Service exchange student to Germany for the summer of 1960.

Robert is a member of the First Lutheran Church and is president of the Luther League. As a Scout, he received his Eagle, his God and Country award, and served as president of his Explorer Post No. 82.

Being a candidate for the much coveted Morehead Scholarship, Robert naturally has aspirations to go to U.N.C. where he presently plans to study to become a guidance counselor, but whatever his final choice, we're sure that the future can hold only success for this very versatile boy.

his mind on French instead of geometry the other day. Miss Caughman called on him to give a statement in the proof of a theorem and he began, "Line AB grave." (meaning AB prime)

SUZANNE SWINDELL

Dependable, vivacious, and witty best describes Suzanne Swindell, this month's Who's Who.

Suzanne is one of the most active students in school, being in many clubs, organizations, and class projects. While currently serving as editor of the Full Moon, member of the National Honor Society, a marshal, and an honorary member of the Student Council, she still maintains a high scholastic record.

Suzanne has served as president of her Freshman class, treasurer of her Sophomore class, vice president and secretary of two of her homerooms, a Red Cross representative, a Senior Banquet waitress, and has been very active in the Booster's Club and F.T.A.

Even with all her school activities, Suzanne has participated actively in Tri-Hi-Y. She has served as president in the ninth grade, vice president in the eleventh grade, and has been a delegate to Blue Ridge.

Suzanne has served on various committees for dances, including the Freshman Fling, Sophomore Hop, Junior-Senior Prom, the dance for Homecoming and many other Christmas, New Year's, and Back-to-School dances.

Having held the offices of president and secretary of Central Methodist M.Y.F., Suzanne is very active in her church. She is currently the youth representative on the Official Board at Central Methodist Church.

Some of her civic projects include helping with the March of

Teacher Honored By FTA Members

Fall was the theme carried out at the F.T.A. tea which was given in honor of the old and new teachers in the lounge last Wednesday at 3:15.

Upon entering the lounge, each teacher was presented a rose corsage.

In one part of the lounge was the refreshment table, where a lime punch, cookies and nuts were served.

The committees for the tea were: refreshment committee, Mary Hill Hatley, Sherry Pegram, Janice Hearne, Jane Crutchfield and Diane Griffin; decoration committee, Susan Ausband, Lydia Hearne, Marie Snuggs, Susie Napier, Nancy Langley, Louise Furr, Susan Rogers, and Rowena Klutz.

Mascots Chosen By Senior Class

In preparation for commencement, mascots have been chosen and calling cards and invitations have been ordered.

A group of bashful pre-school children dressed in their finest clothes, decorated the stage October 11 when senior class mascots were chosen.

Dressed in a pink dress, little Julie Howell appealed to the Senior class members and was selected as a mascot for commencement. The daughter of Jim Howell, Julie will take part in her father's graduation exercises in June.

Four-year-old Hal Ingram was selected as the other mascot of the senior class. He was attired in a red and white checked vest and black bermudas on the day of his selection.

Seniors have been deciding what kind of calling cards they want and how many they will need. An order has been sent to the Print Craft Company. The calling cards are used in the graduation invitations and the seniors exchange them among themselves.

Also a tentative order for graduation announcements has been sent to the Balfour Company. Graduation will be June 2 this year.

Dimes and being a "marcher" for the Cerebral Palsy 60-minute march.

Among Suzanne's hobbies she states that swimming, reading, and sewing are her favorites.

Next year Suzanne hopes to attend either High Point College or Woman's College, where she will be studying to be a high school English teacher. You can be assured by her hard work and capability that she will be a success.
