

D. E. Is Off To Good Start

Each of the thirty-two students enrolled in the Distributive Education Class at A.S.H.S. this year is employed in some phase of retailing, marketing, or distribution.

This year D. E. II, which includes nine more subjects, was added to the curriculum. These nine subjects, taught under the heading of retailing, consist of Speech Psychology, Salesmanship II, Advertising II, Window Display, Business Services, leadership courses, job analyses, economics of distribution, and commercial law.

Plans to attend the District meeting at Kannapolis on November 8 are now in the making. The Deca Club is in the Western District along with nine other schools. Last year the District meeting was where Martha Burleson started her climb to success.

The Deca Club has elected the following officers: Wayne Mauney, president; Jimmy Watson, vice-president; Sylvia Kluttz, secretary; Judy Laton, treasurer; Joyce Smith, historian; and Lana Turner, editor promotion manager.

An invitation is extended to each student to visit the D. E. classroom. Merchandise, a life-size manikin modeling the latest styles of clothing, and a 9x4x2 display case are among the many items on display. Merchandise has been loaned to the class by managers of retail stores who are co-operating with the D. E. program.

Librarians Are Preparing Books

Mrs. Harrison and her new library assistants have been busy preparing new and rebound books for the library shelves since the opening of school.

The library staff has prepared several rebound books and about 85 new books since school opened. In addition another shipment of new books is expected in the next few weeks. These books feature a variety of subjects, including science, math, foreign language, fiction, travel, geography, history, and literature.

Helping Mrs. Harrison in the library this year are Brenda Cranford, Lenora Cranford, Wayne Cranford, Doris Eudy, Judy Griffin, Drinda Harley, Janet Honbarrier, Judy Huneycutt, Joan Lambert, Sharon Lane, Sylvia Pinion, Susan Snotherly, Joyce Terry, Delores Thompson, Wanda Tucker, Linda Whitley, and Wanda Williams.

These students are in the library not only to help Mrs. Harrison but also to assist other students in finding any material which they might need.

4 Delegates Will Attend Congress

Albemarle Senior High will be represented at the annual Student Council Congress to be held in Fayetteville, October 22-24, by delegates Jeff Underwood, Raymond Earnhardt, "Dink" Morton, and Rowena Kluttz.

Along with Mrs. Young, Student Council advisor, exchange student Marie Ruffat will also go to Fayetteville as an unofficial delegate.

Attending the Student Council Congress will be delegates from the various schools to exchange ideas on ways to promote the efficiency of the student council.

Jeff Underwood will lead one of the discussion groups. His group will discuss as its topic, "The Organization of a New Student Council." Other groups will have different topics for discussion on subjects such as ways to make money and the planning of service projects.

Delegates will attend a one-hour class each day. Additional features of the Congress will be a banquet and an informal dance to be held during the two-day period.

Mrs. Fry told her third period English class that Robin Hood robbed the rich and gave to the poor.

"He had to rob the rich," quipped Harriet Reeves; "the poor didn't have any money."

When Mrs. Hall brought the absentee list to Mrs. Deese, she was greeted with "Merci beaucoup."

Mrs. Hall quickly responded, "Bonjour, Bonjour."
