BLOSSOMS IN THE DUST - Sponsored by Hudson Library Association

passes those he comes in contact with, and though everybody laughs at him at first, in the end those who come in contact with him are forced to meet him on his own grounds. When he declares his love for Candida, her husband, Rev. James Mavor Morell, is vastly amused. However, he soon finds himself jealous and suspicious, and the two men argue it out, without taking Candida into their confidence. In the end, of course, she straightens everything out for her own convenience, to the amusement and satisfaction of the audience.

To theatre hungry people, and to the younger generation which has had very little opportunity to see really good theatre, Candida is a special delight, for it offers not only stimulus to the eye and the spirit of adventure, as the movies do, but also appeals to the intellect and stirs the deep, human sense of humor in all of us. Anyone who enjoys brilliant dialogue, anyone who would like to call a great, international wit friend will revel in that most heartwarming of comedies, Candida.

The play is directed by Arthur Little, and the cast in order of appearance includes: Rev. James Mavor Morell, Larry Gates; Miss Proserpine Garnett, Edith Sommer; Rev. Alexander Mill, Tony Moore; Mr. Burgess, James Reese; Candida, Muriel Brasler; Eugene Marchbanks, Arthur Little. Composing the staff are, Stage Manager, Sara Little; Electrician, Jack Wilcox; Prop Mistress, Mary Hodgson
