

1982 CLASS PROHPECY

What is all that noise? Goodness another class reunion! Oh, no! Don't tell me it's going to be another one like last year! Whew, that one was really rough! Some dumb broad screamed when I ran across her toe. It wasn't my fault. I mean if she hadn't have stuck her big fat foot in my way, it wouldn't have happened. Anyway, before we go much further, I guess I should introduce myself. I'm Moncchi Mulinski, Resident Mouse of the Highlands Community Building. This must be the graduating class of 1982 gathering for their 10 year reunion. As usual, it's being held at the Community Building this year, of course, Mrs. DeWolf wouldn't want it any other way. God bless her soul, she was accidentally glued to death one year while working on the Junior-Senior Prom. Her noble Super Glue Statue proudly stands pointing at the board in the old Junior Homeroom. The statue serves a dual purpose, first of all, it is very decorative, and secondly it's a grim reminder of fund raising.

Ah, here comes our first charming couple. Well, if it isn't Sue and Tim Houston sailing in on Tim's new ship, the Sue Hoo II. This is not your ordinary naval vessel, mind you, it's equipped to carry their fleet of 16 kids comfortably. This is a classic example of necessity being 'the mother of invention,' or father in this case.

Strolling in right behind them is Everette Miller Einstein himself. Known as the "mad scientist" of Scaly Mountain. Everette is famous for his ever popular cabbage plucking machine. This is just one more example of Everette's Afro ingenuity. Always the boy wonder!

Next to happily trod in the doorway is Mr. & Mrs. Terry Watson of Watson's Food Store. Terry took over Bryson's Food Store several years ago when one of his bosses accidentally fell off the produce truck into a crate of rotten peaches. Terry has a world wide chain of grocery stores now. You can find a Watson Food Store in any major city west of Cashiers.

There is a strange grating noise outside, and upon a glance we see that it's only Tammy Lowe trying to parallel park her new Ford backhoe. Tammy inherited Lowe's Backhoe Service, and now she digs swimming pools for celebrity's homes. She even dug her own for the home she shares with Robert Redford in Oconee Heights, Walhalla, SC.

With a crash and a bang comes Nicky Price, the famous cliff hanging sculptor. Nicky is famous for the work of art you see sculptured at the rock quarry. Also, at the rock quarry you will find part of Nicky's finger along with some beer cans and a few girlie magazines. Nicky's next project is to sculpt Whiteside into the form of a Jack Daniels Old No. 7 bottle. Best of luck, Nick!

With a flash of cameras and the roar of a Rolls Royce, we see its Pamela J. Selleck known as the quiet Pam Hunter in years gone by. After being bored to tears with the dull, common everyday life, Pam ran away to wed her first and only love, Magnum P.I. Tom and Pam lead a hectic life scurrying from their home in Hawaii to their summer residence in Clear Creek Estates. When asked what it's like being married to a sex symbol (and being one herself) Pam just winks.

With the lovely aroma of formaldehyde, we see it's Pat Cabe and the Rev. Jody Bullard of Cabe & Bullard Funeral Homes. Jody blesses them and Pat dresses them with new up-to-date fashions from Me-Me's Department Store (formerly known as People's) Me-Me's owner Melinda Taylor only responds to the ring of the cash register and old reams of Magnum, P.I. With the assistance of her two funeral home friends, Jody & Pat. Melinda has managed to set up stores in London, Paris, and Pickens.

With the squeal of tires and the smell of burning rubber, we see its Toyota Talley and Jet Set Jones. Tim and Roger teamed up after high school to go into their own business racing Toyotas. When asked about their love lives, Tim and Roger grind their gears and cut doughnuts!

With the ear deafening sound of a dump truck gate closing we see it's Bud & Tina Rogers wheeling in Buds new Ford two-ton dump truck. As Bud helps Tina out of the truck, I see Tina's
