

ENTERTAINMENTS

(Leola Johnson.)

This year we started off our High School term with quite a round of entertainments. On October 19 a dinner served by the second year Home Economics girls was given, the proceeds of which amounting to $30, went toward paying for the football suits.

The Sophomore class decided to do their bit towards paying for the paraphernalia, also, and therefore, gave a Halloween party on October 27. Although only a nickle was charged at each booth $27.10 was made clear of all expenses. Among the many side attractions a few were "The Lost Soul," "The Dying Woman," "The Kissing Booth," and "The Fortune Teller's Booth." All of us agreed that the booth where the "eats" were sold was the main attraction.

On the evening of Nov. 3rd, the Home Economic girls gave a playlet and a box supper for the purpose of the equipping of their department. The name of the play was "And the Lamp Went Out." The cast of characters included Margaret Ellen Patterson, heroine, Eddie Crisco, hero, Louise Green, mother of heroine; Roy Whitley, villain; Grace Pickler, reader.

At the close of the play the attractively prepared boxes were auctioned off to the highest bidder by Charles McSwain and Ralph Feagin. The proceeds amounted to $50.
