A Change

With every word that's spoken here today
Time slips by quickly, and is seen no more;
For some it is the start of a new way,
The Ragsdale Senior Class of Sixty-four.
We look back at the years that have gone by,
We hold within our hearts these memories dear,
The good beside the bad they seem to lie,
Each one remembered when they happened here.
Now graduation time demands our thoughts,
One goal we each have set almost attained.
And with it all our future plans are brought,
A guide to future goals that we have named.
As Seniors we are reaching a new age,
Still players, only a different stage.
