

MISS BIGGERS CONDUCTS CHAPEL EXERCISES

'And it shall come to pass that before they call I will answer, and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. . . . If ye abide in me and my words in you, ye may ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you. . . . Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. . . . Therefore, I say unto you, what things soever ye desire when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.'

Miss Biggers then gently rebuked us that: "Ye have not because ye ask not." The words of Christ himself. Then to prove that these promises had been, and are being applied to practical every-day life, Miss Biggers gave us some concrete examples of answers to prayers.

Probably two of the most interesting examples of answers to prayers, selected from five or six examples which she gave us, were: A certain Western college needed a library, which would cost at least $750. The president of the college declared that he could not possibly raise the fund. The librarian, in her distress, appealed to him again—and this time the president decided to pray for the money. In order to do the task he had set for himself in the correct way, the president of the college ordered the books first, and then prayed to the Lord for the financial backing. The Lord not only sent the money needed, but through a good Christian friend of the college, He sent $10,000. Another great and marvelous example of prayer and faith is the Compton Home in Asheville for friendless girls. The home is run entirely on faith, and every inmate depends upon the goodness of the Lord to provide. Mr. Compton puts his faith in God for "his girls," and they are always cared for.

Then in a very fitting manner, Miss Biggers led her talk to a close by giving us the secret to having our prayers answered. She said: "We can help in answering prayers if we will keep in tune with God's spirit, and will take time to commune with God." The intelligent girl had an opportunity from this remark to answer the question which is being asked so much on our campus just at this time: "What is the secret of Miss Biggers's life? She seems so calm and happy through all the days of work and worry—I wish I knew her secret!" It is prayer, for nothing can be against us if God is for us. In her last few remarks Miss Biggers pleaded that we exercise the power of prayer and faith in our great crisis now—for our new Meredith! Why should we, a Christian people, in a Christian college, go about complaining a lack of finances. Let us ask, believing that God will give us all of which we have need.

N. C. C. P. A. ENTERTAINED AT DAVIDSON COLLEGE APRIL 30, MAY 1 AND 2

Parham, managing editor of the Charlotte Observer, gave a short address on "College Students and the Newspaper." Mr. Parham represented a reportorial career as anything but a path of roses, and has probably dissuaded some of us from choosing the profession of Sob Sister in preference to that of teaching. Yet, according to Mr. Parham, being a reporter has its compensations.

After this followed other discussions of the editorial staff and business staffs, and the meeting adjourned at one o'clock.

From four to six the fraternity houses were open to the delegates, who spent a pleasant afternoon becoming better acquainted with Davidson. At seven-thirty in the evening a Spanish entertainment was given by the Davidson and Queens College Spanish Clubs in Shearer Hall. This was very amusing in spite of the fact that our knowledge of Spanish was slight. Among the songs were recognized the melodies of Pretty Little Blue-eyed Sally and Too Tired. As soon as this was over The Davidsonian and The Davidson College Magazine were hosts at a banquet given at the Maxwell-Chambers Hotel. This was perhaps the greatest social event of the whole session. Mr. Piggy Martin was toastmaster, keeping the guests in a roar of laughter by his clever speeches. Mr. Lockhart of the Glee Club, also entertained the company with some amusing songs. The menu was arranged in a very unique way by Mr. Frederick Smith, the world-famous, all-round genius of Davidson. Prominent among the speeches was the one made by our own editor, Dot McBrayer. The evening seemed all too short to the guests who at last disbanded sometime near the hour of twelve.

Saturday morning came another business meeting, made up of the report of the executive committees, the reading and approval of the minutes, the reports of special committees, the report of the treasurer, and the election of officers. The chief new officers were Mr. E. G. Moore of State College, president, Miss Dixie Hines of G. C., treasurer, and Mr. Richardson of Elon, secretary. Following this meeting came an address on "The Psychology of the News Item," by Dr. Frazer Hood, Professor of Education and Psychology at Davidson. This lecture was especially interesting. The final adjournment was at twelve o'clock, and the farewell luncheon at the Maxwell-Chambers Hotel followed at one-thirty. This was a rather sad affair because everyone felt pangs of regret at having to leave so delightful a place as Davidson after such a short stay.

No girl who went to the N. C. C. P. A. can complain of being a wallflower, and nobody left Davidson without having made many new friends.

REPORT OF FINDINGS COMMITTEE OF S. I. A. S. G. BROUGHT BY DELEGATES

(f) Coordinate with natural laws.
4. Laws should be presented to students for acceptance only after their minds have been prepared for them by means of training, publicity and discussion.

IV. That the judiciary, having a realization of the following facts, will be most successful in enforcing laws for the welfare of both the college and the individual student.

1. Social conditions should be conducive to high standards of living.

2. Whenever possible standards should be substituted for rules and regulations.

3. An attempt should be made to build character rather than to inflict penalties. Punishment should be constructive rather than destructive.

4. Personality and good will on the part of the executive will go far to combat the bad element of the student body.

V. That, though in the past the conference has resulted merely in the interchange of specific methods used in the colleges, this conference has succeeded in training and inspiring student government officials to be better executive legislators and judiciaries and has brought us to the realization that we can best benefit our individual student governing association by broadening our outlook, increasing our sympathy and developing our character.

VI. That Florida State College for Women has shown herself to be a most hospitable hostess and the conference wishes to express its sincere appreciation to her for what she has contributed toward its success.

Respectfully submitted,

BEATRICE ADAMS, Chairman,
Findings Committee

The delegates from Meredith were Dot McBrayer and Leone Warrick from the Twig and Margaret Wheeler, Katy Dail and Elaine Goode from the Acorn.
