ANNUAL BROADCAST

even greater cause for joy and eager anticipation in "the prevailing attachment of the students to the basic purposes of the College, the evidences of their substantial scholastic effort and achievement, the steadily improving quality of service rendered by our instructional and administrative staffs, and the more vital conviction among our Baptist people that Meredith must be better prepared to render our denomination and State the desperately needed service which Christian education alone can furnish." He reported briefly on the Expansion Fund and the building program for the College and ended on a note of challenge for the future.

"As individuals and organizations, in domestic as in international affairs, we are realizing that the problems of peace are more challenging than those of war, that the real victory which we seek remains to be won. To this task, on this day of grateful remembrance, let us dedicate ourselves anew; that in attitudes and activities, in personal and social relationships, we may contrive to fulfill our obligations to the past by an unwavering fidelity to the interests of the future."

Dr. Campbell's talk was followed by a selection by the Student Sextette, composed of Rebecca Barnes of Black Creek, Jean Davis of Selma, Betty Jean Donley of Davistown, Pa., Virginia Holcomb of Winston-Salem, Jane Watkins of Durham, and Jean White of Colerain. They sang "Come Down Laughing Streamlet" by Spross and were accompanied by Emily Hine of Winston-Salem. Miss Beatrice Donley of the voice department directed the Sextette.

Two students, Nancy Harris of Norwood, president of Student Government, and Elizabeth Shelton of Washington, president of B.S.U. made brief talks. Nancy, speaking on "Meredith—a Community" sketched the community life of the College, showing how the various organizations on the campus sought to develop various capacities in the students and to produce a happy campus life. Elizabeth, discussing "The Real Meredith," spoke of the spirit which over and above all material assets of the College makes it what it is. The friendly competition, the cooperation between faculty and students, the friendliness among the girls, the serious and consecrated devotion to high aims—all these, she said, constitute the spirit of real Meredith "which makes you know that when you leave Meredith you don't really leave it at all, for the ideal of 'culture made perfect thought the religion of Jesus Christ' goes with you wherever you go."

All alumnae listeners were urged to join in the concluding number on the program, the "Alma Mater" sung by the Sextette.
