

Four Classes Submit Stunt Scripts for Approval

JUDGES SELECTED FOR COMPETITION

Presidents of the four college classes must meet a deadline this weekend for stunt scripts, since their respective script committees must ready their copies of class stunts for approval immediately. Judges have also been selected by each class, to select the winning skit on Stunt Night, scheduled for March 10.

The A. A. Board, which sponsors Stunt Night, has selected as chief judge Miss Evelyn Straughan of Raleigh. The seniors chose Mrs. Elizabeth Shelton Smith, also of Raleigh; the juniors, Miss Catherine Wyatt, Raleigh; the sophomores, Mrs. June Stallings, Sanford; the freshmen have not yet made their choice.

To assure a greater understanding of Stunt Night by the judges, the Athletic Board this year required each class to select as judge an alumna of Meredith who had graduated before the present senior class entered.

This year is the first in which Stunt Night has been given on a separate date from Palio; changes in the schedule were voted last fall in order to permit more class participation in each event.

Practices will get underway next week for Stunt; all four presentations must be the original work of students.

Six Seniors Are Awarded Degrees in January Commencement Exercises

Six seniors received bachelor of arts degrees at commencement exercises held at Meredith at noon on Saturday, February 3. Receiving diplomas from the college president, Dr. Carlyle Campbell, were Laurice Hlaas, of Palestine, who received her degree in sociology; Martha Stough, of Raleigh, in mathematics; Nell Rankin, Raleigh, in home economics; Mina Mayton, Durham, in primary education; Lolita Saunders Walker, of Reidsville, in home economics; and Mary Wright, Raleigh, in English.

The six candidates were presented for their degrees by Dean Leishman A. Peacock, who presented each graduate with a leather-bound copy of the Bible, with her name imprinted in gold on the cover.

Four of the six graduates also completed requirements for an A-grade teaching certificate; they are Lolita Walker, Mary Wright, Martha Stough, and Mina Mayton. Martha Stough was graduate cum laude.

Preceding the awarding of degrees, Dr. Campbell emphasized in a brief address that the pursuit of education is vital today because "The great struggle today is for the control of the minds of men, and the great issues are being settled, not on battlefields, but in the classrooms of the world."

The colleges, he stated further, are fulfilling their established purpose and are doing "strategic military service."

Highsmith Speaks To Business Club

Dr. J. Henry Highsmith, head of the division of instructional service in the North Carolina Education Department, was guest speaker on Thursday night, February 8, at the regular monthly meeting of Tomorrow's Business Women.

Dr. Highsmith stressed in his speech the importance and need of business education in our educational system today. He told the club that there are between four and five hundred teachers of business education in the state of North Carolina, but that there is still a great need for more business teachers today.

Dr. Highsmith also emphasized several important traits, other than technical requirements, which are important for the teacher of business education as well as those planning to enter other fields in business. He stressed the importance of a well integrated personality and the ability to

BASKETBALL TEAM SCHEDULES GAMES

With basketball practices well underway, several games have been scheduled for the Meredith team, according to an announcement by the basketball instructor, Miss Cunningham. The first game is scheduled with the women marines at Camp LeJeune, to be played on March 7. Another game with Campbell College is being scheduled for the team.

Included in the freshmen's list of games is one with Needham Broughton High School.

The inter-class tournament will begin early in March; after these play-offs the varsity team will be announced, as well as the winner of the "most valuable player" award.
