

DORMITORIES ON CAMPUS BEGIN PLAY OF FOUR INDIVIDUAL SPORTS CONTESTS

Athletic tournaments within the four dormitories are now well underway. Sponsored by the Athletic Association, the tournaments are a new feature on the Meredith campus this semester.

Students from each of the dormitories are competing in the four separate tournaments which are tennis, ping-pong, archery, and badminton. Student participation in the contests is fairly good. Stringfield is leading in the number of participants with a total of twenty-nine entries, and Vann is second with nineteen.

First, posters were put up in each dormitory on which anyone who wished to enter any or all of the tournaments could sign by April 21. Then a schedule was arranged which provides for an elimination tournament within each dorm for both singles and doubles in tennis, badminton, and ping-pong. The contests are being played off in the contestants' spare time and the winners and scores recorded.

Girls taking part in the archery tournament will record their individual scores after shooting the required number of arrows, and the winner from each dormitory will be the girl with the highest score.

A deadline for the tournaments within the dormitories will probably be set for the last part of May. Tentative plans at present are to set aside one Saturday afternoon for the finals of all the tournaments to be played. At that time the winners from each dorm will compete for the title of champion of the four sports.

ALPHA PSI

Requirements of the fraternity. The new members were awarded the blue and gold colors of Alpha Psi by Diane Newton, the President of the chapter.

A formal initiation, in which these girls will become fully recognized members of the cast, will be held within the next two weeks. Following the initiation, the cast will elect officers for next year.

STIFF MUSCLES IS PLAY-DAY RESULTS

By Ruth Ann Simmons

Stiff and aching muscles of both faculty and students are back to normal by now after a strenuous and successful play-day, over which Mr. Simmons and Hope Hodges reigned as duke and duchess. It was indeed a successful day for the freshmen of Stringfield for they won the prized trophy, a tin cup tied with maroon and white streamers.

The two main events of the day, the faculty-student volleyball and softball games, were split. The faculty won the volleyball game by a score of 28-20 while the students trounced the faculty 15-1 in softball.

After a picnic supper on the lawn, the races were run and a songfest was held with each dorm singing their original song. Then the announcement of the winner was made, and the tired but happy participants headed homeward to await another play-day.

Gert: What shall I do? Bob has been under water for twenty minutes.

Mert: Let's go home. I wouldn't wait any longer for any man.

Curtain Up

By Betsy Canaday

Well, although it seems impossible, the curtain has come down on the last production of Meredith's Little Theater, "The Silver Chord." From all reports the play was well received; we've even heard that the tears of the actors were matched by those of the audience.

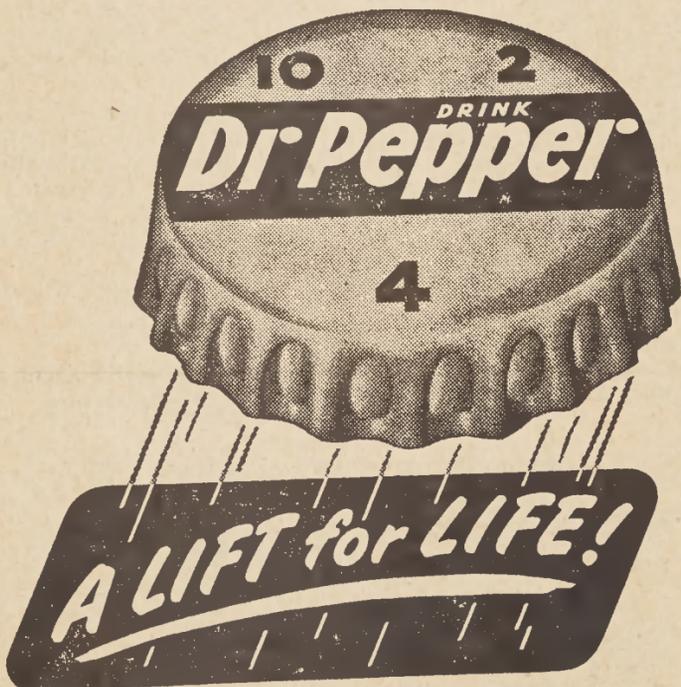

Much of the necessary backstage work was eliminated in this production because the set was already made. There were, however, a thousand things to be done, and in spite of the fact that some passed out along the way, everything was finished by Wednesday before production on Thursday. The furniture was by courtesy of Sears' of Cameron Village, and those girls who were in charge of it spent several days in terror, lest someone injure the beautiful finish.

There were only four female roles in the play, three of which were major roles and played by seniors. Much of the backstage work was also done by seniors. The entire Little Theater finds a lump in its throat when reminded that these girls will leave us this year. Seniors, you really did a wonderful job, and you will certainly be missed. To Mickey Bowen, our president, we wish to add a special word of gratitude for what she did for the organization this year. Thanks, madam president, and good luck.

The Raleigh Little Theater did a play last week called the "Voice of The Turtle" by John van Druten. Perhaps the most memorable feature of the show was Barbara Marshall, a 1950 graduate of Meredith College, who starred in the role of Sally. The playbill gave her credit for her part in "Light Up the Sky" and "The Detective Story," but Meredith students will remember her as an art major.

The Meredith Little Theater extends to all the students an invitation to join us in our work next year. There is truly a place for each of you. One doesn't have to be an actress to find work with us. Anyone with talents along the lines of carpentry, lighting, make-up, or just plain "borrowing" is assured of a place. We need you and believe you will have fun with us.
