STUDENTS EXPRESS DESIRE

idea to do something with the buildings we already have before donating anything new. To re-decorate Johnson Hall would make a wonderful gift according to Jean Miller. Along the same line, Dot Prickett said, "I'd re-decorate and re-juvenate all the dorm parlors with new furniture, a supply of magazines, and put some games in each one." Penina Bowden would include radios in each one also. Someone else suggested that she would include a course of interior decorating in the home economics department. During the course, the students would be required to re-upholster the furniture in Johnson Hall, especially that in the parlors.

Well, if we're going to dream, why not do it in a big way? Let's have a huge gymnasium with a swimming pool in the basement level, bowling alley at one side of the main floor, with the basketball court taking up the majority of the space, and a skating rink above that?! It's a good thing this is a dream 'cause who'd get any studying done if such a place were real?

Three angels who failed to give their names decided to give co-eds!!! Ruby Wiggins also wanted to put more eligible males on campus and Barbye Harper said she'd erect a house of some type for all the married students so that their husbands could come to see them at any time without being bothered with any regulations!

A coke machine and a radio that worked would be put into

Home Ec. Students Specialize in Christmas Cookery

By BETH MORGAN

Have Christmasy smells been drifting your way? Have you seen ornate animals, brightly colored snowmen, and gaily-dressed, petite men and women?

The making and decorating of children's cookies has been the Christmas project of the sophomore foods class this year. After several class periods of practice in perfecting technique and developing new ideas, groups of students were invited to present demonstrations for various women's clubs.

At the invitation of a club made up of the wives of ministerial students at Wake Forest, Sarah Dale, Millie Greene, and Jane Williamson, accompanied by Mary Jo Shaw, president of the Home Economics club, presented a demonstration. The theme was centered around the fact that hospitality can be extended in modern times and still be economical in time and money.

A similar program was presented at Lillington by Ardine Lewis, Joan Langley, and Trevah Garrett with Jane Luther Compton accompanying them as a representative of the Home Economics club.

In connection with a workshop called "Christmas Ideas at Work," the Raleigh Woman's club requested a demonstration on making and decorating cookies. Cookies were shown that were made by cutters which printed a design at the same time they cut. Others were shown which were cut without any cutters at all. Then the cookies were decorated in such a fashion that would thrill any child. Students participating in this demonstration were Beth Morgan, Dot Prickett, Mary Jo Griffin, Shirley West, Pat O'Quinn, Janice Witherington, Nell Garrell, and Shirley Graham.

VOLUNTEERS PARTICIPATE IN WORK AT BAPTIST GOOD WILL CENTER

By BECKY CALLOWAY

Some of the most constructive work in which Meredith girls are engaged, takes place on a purely voluntary basis during the girls' free hours. This work is carried on at the Baptist Good Will Center, which is directed by Miss Annie Ivey and her assistant, Miss Bettye Frazier.

The Good Will Center is a community center for the Smoky Hollow area. It is located in an ordinary small white house. Children from the ages of four to seventeen spend much of their spare time here where they are provided with spiritual guidance as well as with social activities.

Meredith girls help those who are slow in reading or those who have difficulty with pronunciation and vocabulary. Classes such as these are held on Mondays and Tuesdays. On Thursdays and Fridays the girls teach choral groups and piano lessons to junior and intermediate girls.

the hut, which would be open over the week-end for dating, by Billie Mizelle.

Dreaming is lots of fun, but there are some things that we really can give to our school. For example, we can do something about what Jackie Norris said would be her big gift to Meredith. She said she would give "More personal interest on the part of the students in the upkeep of the school."

Story hours are held for the younger children.

Some of the clubs which make up the Good Will organization are: The Future Homemakers for intermediate girls, the Sunbeam club for boys and girls from the ages of three to six, the Friendly Circle for women aged seventeen to one hundred, the Sunshine Club for colored children aged three to sixteen, the Shining Stars for the Primary children, and the J O Y Club for the Junior girls.

Friday night is set aside for parties or for Family Night. On Sunday afternoons there are special programs consisting of singing, guest speakers, religious plays and pictures, and Bible messages. A library is maintained at the Center and is open for the use of the community at the close of the club hour each day.

Through the work of the Baptist Good Will Center, the children are given an introduction to the church. This is a challenge to the students of Meredith College. If there is any spare time in your week, won't you join the other girls who are already working there?

Athletes Enter Tournament at Chapel Hill

Sally Massey, president of Meredith's Athletic Association, won the archery trophy at the recent Play-Day tournament held in Chapel Hill. With a score of ninety-four, she defeated seven opponents.

Meredith was also represented in volleyball, defeating Carolina by a score of six to four. The team, coached by Mrs. Katherine Adams, consisted of Kay Sugg, Marjorie Walker, "Salty" Salter, Ruby Wiggins, Mary Hane, Ann Lovell, Jean Pace, B. A. Aldridge, Marian King, Martha Neal Honeycutt, and Hazel Phillips.
