

Astros and Phis Entertain New Students

The Villagers entertain with "Hadley's Nightmare" at the Astro meeting.

Both campus societies, the Phis and the Astros, opened their November meetings to freshmen. Both groups featured outside entertainers in addition to campus talent.

The Phis opened with a business session in which they discussed plans for rush week to be held in January. A skit was also presented to introduce the society officers to the freshmen present. The team of Margaret Simmons and Elizabeth Holland provided entertainment as did Rufus King and the Night Owls from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Refreshments were served, and the meeting was closed with the singing of the Phi song.

Plans for rush were also discussed in the Astro business session. The Villagers, a local singing group, provided entertainment. The group was especially applauded for its rendition of "Headless Nightmare," a song which they have recorded. After refreshments were served, the Astros concluded their meeting with the singing of the society song.

LETTER

as I was, to know that only ten people in our student body applied to help in the tutorial project? Would you be surprised to learn that THE TWIG has to beg for letters to the editor? What percentage of church attendance would you estimate for this weekend or any weekend? Do you belong to a club on campus which really has meaning? Do you belong to a club?

Let me make two comments about what I have said thus far. First, this letter was provoked by a dissatisfaction with my own attitude and was put down on paper because I felt this attitude could be significantly multiplied by others in our student body. Secondly, I would want to acknowledge those among us who are at work. These are those who are doing their part in contributing to our school. There are professors who guard against "fed back" quizzes. There are thought-provoking chapel speakers. There are students who spend hours working on school projects. But are these an alarming few?

So what? A letter to the editor of the TWIG is not likely to do the trick and inspire participation and concern outside oneself.

A forum or chapel talk is not commonly the cause of provoking action. The day you are most receptive might be when personal activities are not so numerous — you break up with your boyfriend and have a "free" weekend or you finish a quiz and have time to abuse.

If you just have something happen to make you pause . . . and when you pause if you have a kind of empty feeling inside like you can't think of a darn thing you're involved in that really counts; maybe then you'll be stirred to action. Will you dare to become involved and find your place at Meredith? Then broaden your scope to finding a place in the community and ultimately in the world? Is there a chance you'll win the race of finding a worthy place in life before apathy sets in forever?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one letter that was not requested. The TWIG prints it at the student's request.

Hamrick and Mills Tapped Into Silver Shield Society

Judy Hamrick Martha Mills

On Monday, October 19, two juniors were tapped into associate membership of the Silver Shield, an honorary leadership society on campus.

Judy Hamrick from Winston-Salem serves as vice-president of the Athletic Association. She has served on the AA board two years and led the 1964 Corn Huskin'.

Martha Mills from Taylorsville serves on legislative board as a freshman hall proctor. She is also a member of Kappa Nu Sigma.

Criteria for Selection

The selections for the Silver Shield are made on the basis of Christian character, constructive leadership, service to the school, and scholarship.
