Student Spotlight

TAMMY SUMMERS

by Laura Moore

Senior Tammy Summer's interest in communicating with the deaf also sparked interest at Meredith. Tammy and Dr. Rebecca Murray of the Education Department were initiators of the new sign language club and class.

"This is so important to those in education because of the mainstreaming of handicapped into the public schools," said Tammy. Her interest in communicating with the deaf began when she was a counselor at a camp where there were a few deaf children. "It was killing me," said Tammy, "I felt such a great need to communicate with them and couldn't." This past summer she took a sign language class in her hometown, Fayetteville, and hoped to also flare interest at Meredith. Tammy observed, "There is a real need for those who can sign, and one must practice and apply what is learned in order to retain it." According to Tammy, the sign language class is such a success and learning experience that it may be differed next semester and could possibly open new doors in teaching Meredith students to educate the handicapped.

The sign language club's first project is working at a reception for the premier of the play Woyceck. The play is at the State Theatre of Gester and consists of deaf and hearing actors. Tammy spoke to Trivia Hanes, counsel for hearing impaired, who suggested the reception. The next project for the club is publicizing the National Theatre for the Deaf, which is coming to Meredith March 26.

Other than her work with the deaf and sign language, Tammy is playing tennis for Meredith for her fourth year, was Religious Emphasis Week Chairman for MCA and 1978-79 junior class secretary. She has been involved with FCA, Young Democrats and Astros. Tammy is interested in criminal justice and working with juvenile offenders.
