

Winz and Strifert narrate slide show on France and Germany in Travelogue series

by Beth Giles

France and Germany were featured in the third part of Meredith's Travelogue Series. Mrs. Burgunde Winz and Ms. Patrice Strifert, who visited these nations last summer, featured slides from the south of France, Brittany, and Paris for the first half of the travelogue. Bavaria and the German wine country were the featured in the later portion.

Nimes, in the southern part of France is a city with definite Roman influence in its architecture and aqueducts. Avignon, on the Rhone, was once the seat of the papacy during the year of 1509-1577, and offered the former palace of the Pope. On the Mediterranean Sea coast is the beautiful harbor city of Marseilles, which is also the oldest and second-largest city in France. The slides of Marseilles featured its rocky coastline and clear blue waters.

In the north of France is the region known as Brittany. Mrs. Winz commented that some of the older residents of Brittany speak a totally different language rather than French. Also seen in this region are prehistoric stone monuments very similar to those of Stonehenge in Great Britain.

From Brittany, the slide show moved southward to Paris. Some of the scenes presented were Notre Dame Cathedral, the Seine River, sidewalk cafes, and of course, the Eiffel Tower. At a castle garden outside of Paris, Mrs. Winz explained the difference between French and English gardens: the French are much more formal and arranged in geometrical patterns, while the English are more like a "controlled wildness."

In Germany, Mrs. Winz and Patrice visited Louisburg, the second largest castle in the world (behind Versailles in France). This was in the heart of German wine country, and the two attended the Winefest held there. While travelling in Bavaria, Mrs. Winz and Patrice participated in a hike through the Alps. Near the France-Germany border, Strasbourg and its cathedral was visited.

Guess who?

This little girl did not grow up to be a sailor. No, instead she joined the Meredith faculty. Know who? (Hint: In 1980 she was awarded an international scholarship by the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International.)

Rebel plot discovered Trial held at Meredith

The North Carolina history class has reported to The TWIG the existence of a plot by the slaves of Bertie and Hertford counties to rebel against the citizens of this state. The ringleaders of the plot have been taken into custody and one of them, King Brown, will be tried Thursday, March 19. The trial will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the C.E.A. The public is invited to attend this event and witness the execution which will undoubtedly follow the conviction of this criminal miscreant.

Authorities in the affected area have issued reassurances that the plot is utterly destroyed. No danger to Raleigh is expected, but students at Meredith are advised to observe all curfews and restrictions appropriate to such an emergency. The TWIG expects further dispatches from Hertford and Bertie in the next few days.

Want to make known your little known talent? How about sharing your widely known skill? Would you consider exhibiting your lack of talent?

If you answered yes to any of the above (or even smiled), you qualify for being a performer in Meredith's Student Government Association's Variety Show.

This once-in-a-lifetime opportunity will take place on Wednesday, March 18 at 8:00 p.m. in Weatherspoon Gymnasium. With Dr. Jack Huber as MC, the show promises to be a real "winner." Only one practice (Tuesday, March 17 at 7:00 in Weatherspoon) will be held to coordinate the activities.

Just submit the following information to the Dean of Students' Office by Thursday, March 5.

All proceeds go to Muscular Dystrophy.
