... And So Little Time

by Kathleen McKeel
Everyday, some well-meaning person, always older than myself, reminds me how important Time is. "Make the most of your time in college." "Manage your time wisely." "Do all your homework, so you can do other things." "If you learn only one thing in college, learn to manage your time."

My response is - If anyone is a proficient time manager, it is the college student. Registration is the perfect example. When scheduling, the average girl chooses classes which will fulfill the following requirements:

(a) the first course is the least demanding; therefore, the minimal attention span is required. This is important because of all those late dates the previous night.

(b) Friday's classes are over as soon as possible.

(c) No courses are scheduled during a favorite soap.

(d) Time for leisurely naps is considered.

(e) The fall schedule is worked so that a good "sunny" schedule is possible next spring.

(f) Graduation is ultimately possible.

Well, we don't always succeed in fulfilling every requirement, but we are competing against 1,500 plus students. Just think how efficient we will be by the time we graduate.

The only problem I can foresee is - will my employers schedule business meetings around GENERAL HOSPITAL?

HAPPY EASTER!!

Easter Weekend Forecast

by Jenny Barker
April is almost here, bringing the promise of another vacation, Easter. Anticipation of the break from school has already entered students' minds. Vacation plans have accordingly been arranged, some as far as two weeks in advance! Trips to sunny, distant retreats top the list of students' plans.

Just as Spring Break seems to warrant trips to Florida, Easter beckons all to the beach. Certainly Myrtle will be flooded by Meredith students. Caroline Bogarty, Jill Allen, Michele McKay, Lillian Clark, and a host of other Juniors will be lucky enough to "catch some rays" at Ocean Drive. It doesn't seem to be a phenomenon only Juniors are affected by. Freshmen Gina Efrid and Laurie Hooks will also be sun-tanning despite the soon due reading of FAR FROM THE MADDENING CROWD. It seems a time to put the pressures of school behind for one last fling before exams. Even senior Susie Naron plans to visit Lake Gaston with a "dear friend."

For those wishing a similar but quieter respite from school, home seems a safe refuge. Many look forward to visiting with family and childhood friends. Being home for grandma's Easter dinner is of great appeal to Sophomores Tina Vincent and Sandy Dixon. Others plan calm but work-filled vacations. Dora Weaver looks forward to being with family on their sheep farm in Maryland.

Everyone has their own ideas of where to be. Certainly many Meredith students will hear church services on Easter Sunday. Many others will still be concentrating on school work. But no matter where Easter is spent, hopefully all will return when Meredith re-opens with brighter smiles and sun-tanned faces.

EDITORS' CORNER

A Tale of Two Editors

Although the school year is coming to a close, it is the beginning of a new year for us. We would like to begin our year as editors of THE TWIG by introducing each other.

Emily, affectionately known as "Memi", is a sophomore English and political science major from Gastonia, N. C. She is a very dedicated worker who accepts responsibility well. A strong interest in journalism was one of the reasons why she ran for TWIG editor. Memi hopes to go into either television or newspaper journalism after graduation. Memi also enjoys horseback riding, writing poetry, and taking care of her pets. She is also a member of the Colton English Club and dorm council.

MLS

Linda is also a sophomore majoring in English and political science. She is from Whiteville, N. C. Linda was editor of her high school newspaper and has been working on THE TWIG staff since she has been at Meredith. She is a strong leader and has lots of good ideas for THE TWIG. Linda hopes to receive a masters degree in journalism after she graduates from Meredith. Linda also works with the ACORN and is a member of the Colton English Club. She is employed by Information Services.

We are looking forward to serving as editors. We have lots of ideas that we believe will make THE TWIG a better paper. We hope that everyone will be supportive. If you have any suggestions or criticisms, let us know. Any stories should now be referred to Linda in 407 Brewer or Emily in 415 Brewer.

To the Editor

March 22, 1982

Dear Editor:

I write you as a former staff member, whose echo is still heard - and will be heard once more. A person has one death to end their life; should that life though a world the way John Lennon's did, the loss of that breath is heard and felt across the world - To in some way say what that meant was the intention of the inscription painted on the old Beehive. The rose had faded but not wilted but apparently the heart of the MRA did when it was painted.....away Why?
