

And speaking of suggestions, some readers suggested that we might save paper by having the newsletter printed on both sides. Don't think we promptly forgot this idea. We checked with our printer who tells us that the type paper used for the newsletter is too absorbent to give a clear copy on two sides.

BEACON HOUSE on Bridges in Morehead City is a drug education center which offers a "way out" for drug users as well as courses in drug education, a Help Line telephone program, and "alternative high" classes in Karate, painting, crafts, and guitar, free to all. Eleanor Thomas, Beacon House Director and Drug Education Coordinator, is a native of Morehead City who, as a graduate chemist, worked a while for a big drug manufacturer, became disturbed by the fact that the company's biggest profit was in tranquilizers, decided she was in the wrong end of the field, and came back here to deal with drugs at a different level. Diana McDonnell, Treatment and Rehabilitation Coordinator, does counseling in drug-related problems and is in charge of the Help Line service which includes about 27 trained telephone volunteers who are on call 24 hours a day to try to be of comfort to people in distress of all kinds. If you feel you can be of service in this area, give Beacon House a call (726-8791). Incidentally, they work on a tight budget, would welcome donations like the cash gift they received recently from an organization at the Methodist Church when Eleanor Thomas spoke there.

Donations to Beacon House will be especially welcome during October and their Fund Drive is underway. Checks may be sent to BEACON HOUSE, 409 Bridges Street, Morehead City, N. C. 28557.

It's BOOKMOBILE time again, hurrah! For those of you who are new, the bookmobile comes once a month and stops for forty-five minutes in front of William and Nettie Murrill's. Watch for the schedule in the Carteret News-Times. The next bookmobile stop in PKS will be October 30 from 10:30--11:15 A.M.

And once again so none of us will forget: A SPECIAL HEARING ON THE PROPOSED BRIDGE WILL BE HELD ON MONDAY, OCTOBER 14, AT 8:00 P.M., AT THE ATLANTIS.
