

Highlights of regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of Pine Knoll Association, Sept. 14, 1976

Motion passed that contract shall be let at once to have 8 slips built at Hall Haven for smaller boats (those which can navigate the bridge at McNeill Inlet).

Davis Landing Ramp extension was also approved and work to start shortly.

Meeting was held at the home of Director Louise Jolitz since it was a runoff election day and the Town Hall was in use. President Milton Yaeck was out of town; Vice-President Davis Cook conducted the meeting. Meetings are scheduled for the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30pm and the public is welcome, either to listen or to offer suggestions in the line of business before the Board.

BOB and VERA BLOOMER have just returned from Canton, N.Y. where St. Lawrence University paid Bob a singular honor. On September 24 the University dedicated the Robert O. Bloomer Auditorium located in Foster S. Brown Hall. Bob, who is James Henry Chapin Professor of Geology and Mineralogy, Emeritus, was there to accept the dedication. Bob, Pine Knoll Shores is delighted that this honor has come to you. We know how unusual it is that an academic facility should be named for a faculty member during his lifetime. It is a real tribute.

CARTERET ARTS COUNCIL is suddenly bursting with energy and offering us lots of opportunities to indulge our creative whims. They were the ones who gave us the beautiful ballet (through the North Carolina School of the Arts) in New Bern recently, and the fine folk singer, Claudia Schmidt who performed at one of the covered dish suppers at Bogue Banks Country Club a few weeks ago. Steamed up to promote all the arts for all the people in the county, the arts council is busy welcoming new members these days: dues are $5.00 per year, payable to Carteret Arts Council, c/o Charles McNeill, 120 Turner St., Beaufort, N.C., 28516. They meet at 7:30pm the second Monday of each month, in different places (announced ahead of time, of course) and usually, in addition to the business meeting, there is some sort of program. Remember, this is an all encompassing art thing: the visual, the musical, the theatre, and so on - you have an art angle to plug, you join and work it into their set-up. Looks as if we are not at the end of the world down here at all: only geographically, really, and that won't stop us from importing culture and from nurturing the culture and talent we have in our very midst. And, speaking of in our midst, the two artists represented at the opening of the Marine Resources Center on Sept. 10 are very much around. LISA MORPHEW is an artist in residence in Beaufort - did you see her lovely bird photos that day on display? And EVA THALLER, whose water colors were admired the same day, is a visiting artist at CTL. The Arts Council is justly proud of both these personable young ladies.

IRENE and KEN DOREMUS are moved in on Teak Court. Of course, they are still busy taking treasures out of boxes and finding places for them. Ken designed their very comfortable home right on the canal, and both are working on its landscaping - landscaping is a happy hobby for both Ken and Irene who are big gardeners and judges as well - chrysanthemums are their specialty - and Irene will be teaching at a flower show school in Jacksonville.

Ken, when his study is completely in order, expects to do consulting in his field of Industrial Hygiene Engineering. Up to now he has been with Merck Laboratories. They have come to us from Westfield, N.J. And their son and daughter and families are living in New Jersey right now. Oh, Irene is a registered nurse, hopes to be of use to all of us should we need attention during any hurricane or other possible medical emergency.

VEE (for Evesia) and BILL BOSSE (pronounced baas-ay) are new on White Ash, overlooking the canal. They have lived a lot of places, including Whitefish Bay, Wisconsin, Ridgewood, New Jersey, Lake Bluff, Illinois, with deepest roots back in Nebraska, but come to us directly from Lake Forest, Illinois, where they were living while Bill was Vice President of Lincoln National Investment Corporation. Their two daughters are Barbara (Manchester, Missouri) and Jennifer (East Brunswick, New Jersey), who will soon each have two children (Jennifer expects her second child in November). Their son, Billy, is off in Seward, Alaska, working and building a cabin and having some fine adventures.

Vee and Bill look forward to playing golf, tennis, and bridge, and Bill wants to have a Sunfish nestled in his snug canal harbor before too long. Right now, though, he is still fighting the chiggers in his woods as he clears his yard to enhance their view.
