PKS POST OFFICE

Ed Crumley, accompanied by Wade Pelletier, postmaster at Morehead City, appeared before the town commission on October 7 in connection with the efforts being made to change the mailing address for residents of Pine Knoll Shores from the Morehead City rural route address.

OUTLOOK BLEAK

They reported that the outlook for such a change was less than encouraging.

Contacts they made with postal officials in Washington and Raleigh indicated that such a change was not likely. However, Mr. Pelletier suggested that if the town elects to pursue this matter further, the first step would be to apply for a contract postal station to be located in Pine Knoll Shores, however, PKS mail still would be routed through Morehead City post office. The contract station, he said, would be set up on a trial basis, but could not remain open if revenues did not support the operation. It was pointed out that Emerald Isle had established such a postal station but it was closed lack of sufficient business.

After the presentation of the report it was the concensus that to follow through on this proposition would not achieve the original purpose, which was obtaining a Pine Knoll Shores postal identity, and further efforts quite likely would be in vain. Mr. Pelletier, however, promised to keep the matter open and reminded the audience "your request is unique."

GOVERNOR HUNT VISITS

At a special meeting, which he had called for the purpose, Governor Jim Hunt visited Pine Knoll Shores on Saturday, Sept. 13, to enlist the help and support of residents here to assist his administration in helping to push forward the state of North Carolina in its program of growth. He reminded the audience that a great number of people living in Pine Knoll Shores had considerable executive experience that could be used by the State with respect to business, education, governmental functions and other facets of state activities.

He was accompanied by several members of his cabinet including Tom Bradshaw, Secretary of the Department of Transportation, who further enlarged on the governor's program. The Governor was introduced by Leo Jenkins, his special advisor on these matters, and the meeting finally was opened to questions and answers from the audience. Each participant also was requested to fill in a questionnaire and mail it back to the Governor's office at Raleigh. About 80 persons were in attendance.
