

Chairman Garrett read a report from Hoot Gibson and Bill Birkel on commercial building permits. They recommended approval of a shed at the Carolina Water Company and another section of Westport condominiums. Reports on both committees were passed.

Building Inspector Bill Ballantine read a letter from Clark Hutchinson, who has discontinued construction of his home at Holly and Oakleaf, expressing his intention to clean up the building site as soon as possible.

Ballantine presented a site plan for a new home on Bogue Sound, near Oakleaf and Yaupon. Since the plan requires dune topping and considerable fill, the "Pretty" Committee agreed to delay a decision until it would make an on-site inspection.

Evan and Carolyn Roderick moved to their new house at 126 Oakleaf Drive from Emerald Isle in July. They are doing a lot of the finishing work themselves and are still very busy getting settled.

OUR NEW NEIGHBORS

Evan retired as a dentist in Gallipolis, Ohio in 1981. Carolyn was librarian at Rio Grande College at the time of retirement but she had also been society editor of the local paper. They moved to Emerald Isle, where they had been vacationing for many years, and thought they had found the place they wanted to live. However, the resort nature of the community was not entirely to their liking and they began to look for something more. They think they have found it in Pine Knoll Shores.

The Rodericks have two daughters, one married and living in Louisiana and the other in Dallas. They said they had worried a lot about their older daughter living so near the Gulf but actually she and her husband were here visiting when Diana threatened and they all evacuated together. All took the evacuation in stride except Boris, their young cat who didn't like the confinement at all.

Both Evan and Carolyn are very creative. Carolyn does a lot of needlework and was working at Swedish weaving when I was there. Evan likes models of any kind. His trains, boat, air plane and tank are on display now but will be operating as soon as he has time for them. He is also interested in photography and has his own dark room. One of the rooms in the house has been made into a Tap Room, replete with player piano, nicklodeon and other vintage accoutrements to authenticate the atmosphere. Other rooms in the house may still need finishing but this one has it all.
