

SEA TURTLES BUSY

So far there are seven nests located in Pine Knoll Shores and this has kept the turtle watchers busy! One turtle nested far up the dune and Aquarium officials Gail Piner and Cathy Mitchell brought along some of the "Sea Monsters" who were a big help in re-planting the grass, smoothing and marking the site. Sea Monsters are young people who have signed up for three mornings a week to learn about the marine environment. Chandler Garland from Atlanta, Brandon Berry from Rocky Mount and Daniel Margolis from Raleigh had signed up for this activity while vacationing in Pine Knoll Shores. They had lots of good questions to ask as they willingly did the scrambling in the soft sand the job required.

Two other nests had to be moved. One was too low on the beach and threatened by high tides while another was in the line of heavy traffic. This is a big operation. Clearly there are more volunteers needed, young and agile, who could help out on the weekends when Aquarium staff is depleted.

If you would like to volunteer call Gail Piner at the Aquarium [247-4003] or Nancy Marshall [247-6126].

ANCIENT MARINERS

It's not too soon to think about the bowling season. If you like to bowl that's all you need to join the group which bowls in Jacksonville on Mondays during the winter. You don't need a high average. All you need is the desire to have an outing, join some of your fellow residents and get a little exercise in the bargain. There are plenty of openings for women regulars and a place on the substitute list is guaranteed both men and women if the teams are full. Call President Marty Hare [726-1829] or Secretary Dot Herbst [247-2879] and get your name on the lists.
