

Robert Youngblood and his attorney requested an audience at this meeting in order to seek approval of a revised plan for water runoff at Lots 1-3 in Fairway Subdivision. There was much discussion of the status of the request, the alternatives involved, and just what the procedure should be for this approval. It was pointed out that the Board of Commissioners could not act until it had a recommendation from the Planning Board. Whether it will be submitted to the Planning Board or whether the developer will proceed with an earlier plan, which was approved but now considered less desirable by all concerned, remains to be seen.

Planning Board Rules and Procedures were adopted and will become a part of the municipal code.

Pursuant to the Public Hearing on the proposed ordinance on noise control, Commissioners decided not to adopt it at this time. Contractors will be requested to observe the courtesy of refraining from noisy construction on Sundays and during sleeping hours.

A second reading of the ordinance change no longer requiring that a member of the Planning Board also be a member of the Community Appearance Commission was given and the change adopted. There will be a liaison person who will attend meetings of both.

Mayor Hanan had several announcements. First came a request from Waste Industries that persons please observe the requirement that leaves and branches be bagged or bundled in four foot or less sizes for pickup.

Dead porpoises should be handled with care because of the mystery surrounding the disease which is killing them. One was reported found in the Sound and the Aquarium, after making the necessary tests, asked the town to see to its disposal. Please notify Town Hall or the Aquarium if a dead porpoise is sighted.

Candidates' Night will be held at 7:30 p.m. on October 29th in the Town Hall. This is jointly sponsored by Pine Knoll Association and PIKSCO and all voters are invited to attend. This is your chance to get to know all the candidates and help you to make your choice on election day.

You will be hearing more about Stephanie Goetzinger. She has just moved to Pine Knoll Shores and an interview is planned. However, she gave the commissioners a brief outline of what she hopes to do here in her capacity as wildlife rehabilitator. Finding there was no program here to help distressed wildlife she hopes to start one. She will be asking for volunteers and donations. For now she will try to handle as many animals as she can herself on the premises, but outside of the North Carolina Aquarium. She needs a little more time to get it going, she told us, but she will answer calls to her home at 247-5767.

Pine Knoll Shores will be a co-host to DOT when it comes to Carteret County to study highway needs.
