Smoke Alarms Save Lives

Proper maintenance is essential. Once the smoke alarms are in place, it is important to check them regularly and perform proper maintenance. It is a long-standing guideline that batteries in smoke alarms be changed twice a year when the time changes for Daylight Saving Time. If you did not change your batteries in mid-March when clocks were changed for this purpose, do it now—and then remember to do it again on November 5 when the clocks are again changed.

In addition to ensuring that you have fresh batteries in your alarms, it is important to be sure that an accumulation of dust does not prohibit their proper operation. When you change the batteries, take a few minutes to use a can of compressed air to blow any dust out of the interior of the alarm. Dust can accumulate on the sensors in the detector and make it less responsive. Dust can also set off the detector if you have an overly dusty environment (such as during home renovations that create lots of dust).

This simple twice-a-year maintenance program is an easy way to ensure that your smoke detectors are in good working order to alert you in the event of a fire. Well maintained smoke detectors should be replaced every 10 years. If they are not maintained, devices may fail in a much shorter period of time.

In addition to smoke alarms, you should have carbon monoxide (CO) detectors on every level in your home (and near carbon monoxide sources such as fireplaces, furnaces and water heaters). CO detectors should never be placed near a window or door since a draft can cause them to fail to alert to the presence of carbon monoxide.

If you would like to have your smoke detectors checked by a professional, your Pine Knoll Shores Fire Department is available to check the placement and working order of your devices. In addition, we will check your house for obvious safety issues and will advise you how to correct any problems. Please call the Fire Department at 247-2268 or stop by the Public Safety Building to discuss your concerns.

Scam of the Month

The Attorney General's office has recently been contacted by consumers who heard "Can you hear me?" or "Is this the lady of the house?" when they answered the phone. These calls are designed to elicit "yes" as an answer. Some of the calls are actually recordings and some may be disguised as solicitations for vacation cruises or other items. Armed with their recording of the consumer's response, these crooks "cram" charges onto the victim's phone or credit card bill.

To protect yourself against these scammers, remember:

- Let it ring. The best and easiest way to combat telemarketing fraudsters is to let unknown calls go to your answering machine. If a caller doesn't leave a message, it was a crook or an unimportant call that was OK to miss.
- Just hang up. If you pick up the phone and a voice says "Can you hear me?" or something else that is designed to get you to respond with a "yes," just put the phone back down. It's rude, but so is trying to steal your money.
- You can't trust Caller ID. Scam artists can manipulate it to make it look like a legitimate call when it isn't. If you are unsure about a call, let them leave a message.
- Study your bill. Check your phone charges and credit card statements carefully. If you see a charge you don't recognize, contact the company and dispute the charge.
