Number One

Greetings From The Management

Production Manager
Frank Wilson

Realizing that many of our employees are now in the four corners of the world, and knowing that they are interested in what the people back home are doing, we have decided to publish a bulletin periodically containing news which we believe will be of interest to our employees here as well as to those in the armed forces. We present this as our FIRST attempt, and we trust that you will help us make this our first success. Our editorial staff, headed by J. U. Newman, will appreciate any suggestions or human interest stories that you think our people would like to see.

It wishes to all the boys in camps, and to you in foreign countries, as well as to those of you at home."

Production Manager.

General Manager
Luther H. Hodges

I am very glad to hear we are going to publish a paper that will be of interest to all employees. It is interesting to understand that the primary purpose of our little publication will be to give news and information from home to our boys in service, but that it will be extended so that all of us can receive copies and participate in the news of the Mills and Sales Offices. I wish I could extend in person a message to each of our boys in service. All of us think of them very often and realize that they are having experiences they will never forget. We know that they do not consider that they are making a sacrifice but are cheerfully doing their bit for America and for the cause of the Allied Nations.

"Our various mills are turning out products for the several branches of our armed forces. We are making wool blankets and overcoating, bagging cloth, duck and shelter tents and many other items.

"We have here at the 82 Worth Street Office, in New York, an exhibit of all of the war products our mills are making. This exhibit has proved to be of much interest to our customers and it gives them a vivid explanation of why they are not able to get as much goods for civilian sales as they would like.

"Quite a few of our salesmen, both in New York and other parts of the country, have gone into service and we hear excellent reports from them. We have followed with much interest the activities of the boys from the Mills, and I want you to know that the Manufacturing Division as a whole is proud of all of those who have gone from the various parts of the business.

"I want to wish for our editor and his mill correspondents the best of success in giving to the boys in service and to other employees a publication that will be of continued interest to them."

LUTHER H. HODGES,
General Manager.

"We cannot have all we want, if our soldiers and sailors are to have all they need."—President Roosevelt.

Greetings From TWUA

"On behalf of the Union which has contractual relations with the nine company mills in Leaksville, Spray, and Draper, I wish to extend cordial greetings to all the Tri-City boys now in the armed forces.

"We on the home front pledge to do our utmost to produce the equipment which you boys in the service require to do the job of smashing the axis.

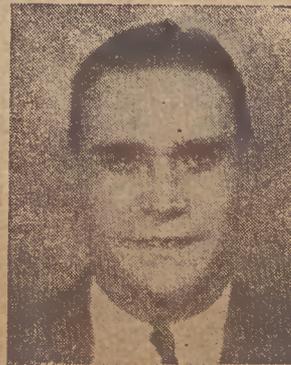

"I want every man now in any of our armed services to know the Union is proud of those who have answered the call of our country in the time of crisis.

"The issues in the present conflict are clear to all of us. Either we will continue to live in a free world with victory or a slave world if we suffer defeat.

"We shall leave no stone unturned to cooperate with you in the fight to maintain liberty and freedom."

Get First Bonds Under Payroll Plan

A large percentage of employees are now buying War Bonds under the convenient payroll deduction plan with many departments signed up 100 per cent. It's a good way to save and at the same time help insure Victory.
