Employees inspection committees play an important part in safety at Fieldcrest. The group above is examining a new coiler guard in the Blanket Mill Cotton Carding Department. Left to right, Clarence Law, J. Frank Hutson and Myrtle Trantham.

At Sheet Mill, F. T. Suttentfield (left), superintendent, and D. S. Archer, master mechanic, are reviewing a safety inspection report, establish a plan for elimination or correction of any unsafe practices listed in the report.

I. H. Shively, of Karastan shop, has inspected all valves and now checks fire buckets to make sure water is available for extinguishing small fires.

W. C. Joyce, foreman, (left) and Howard Barton inspect machine guard at Bedsread Mill.

Reporting of all injuries is very important. Above, Dr. J. A. Sanford, medical director, gives first aid to Lawrence Hairston, of Automatic Blanket Mill, who was cut on finger.

T. B. Hamrick, foreman, (right) explains safety rules to Lawrence Hairston, new employee at Sheet Mill. Each employee receives copy of safety rules when he is "signed up" at the Employment Office.

Safety Rules

1. An employee having an accident in the course of his or her employment must report it at once to his or her supervisor or to the person in charge of First Aid.
2. When so designated by management, goggles must be worn or a safety glass protector used by an employee while operating an emery wheel or while performing other duties.
3. No "horseplay" or scuffling will be allowed in mill or inside mill gate.
4. There shall be no running at any time, in or out of the mill, down steps or on mill premises.
5. No one shall enter or leave the mill or mill yard through openings other than the regular mill doors or mill gates.
6. Spitting on floor is prohibited. No one shall throw litter, waste or bottles on floor or mill yard.
7. Always stop machinery to clean, oil or adjust unless foreman instructs otherwise.
