

Girl Scouts Enjoy Day Camp At New Site

Eight-Day Program Is Highly Successful

A total of 86 Girl Scouts and Brownies attended the highly-successful day camp sponsored by the Tri-City Girl Scout Council June 3-11.

The event was held at the local Girl Scouts' new camping area—a 35-acre site made available by Fieldcrest Mills. The camp is located off of Highway 14 in the general vicinity of the site for the new hospital.

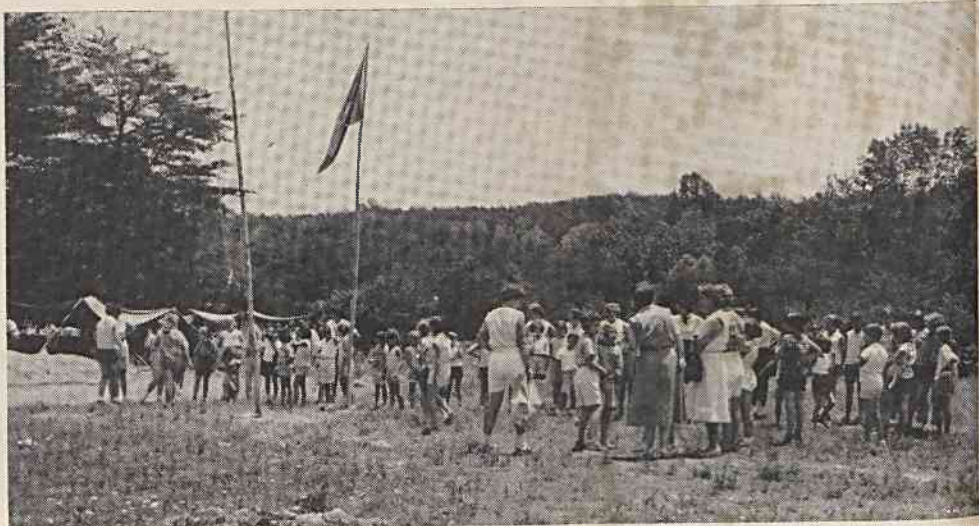

The Scouts enjoyed crafts, nature study, and swimming and swimming instruction, the latter at Lynrock Park. Primitive camping was instituted for the first time.

On the last day of camp, the Tri-City Girl Scout Council held a luncheon meeting at the camp. Guests of honor were President Harold W. Whitcomb and Mrs. Whitcomb; Harry Fagge, attorney for the Council, and Mrs. Fagge; and H. E. Williams, Fieldcrest safety director, who assisted with arrangements for the camp.

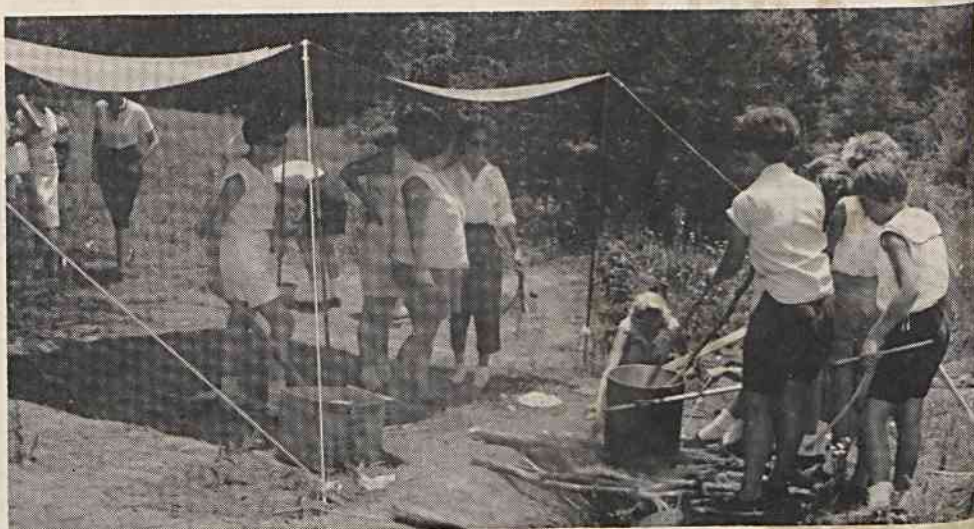

Presentation Is Made

In a surprise ceremony, Mr. Whitcomb was presented an Indian war bonnet in appreciation of his interest in and assistance to the local Girl Scout movement.

Mrs. William McGehee is camp chairman for the Tri-City Girl Scout Council, and Mrs. John Hodges is vice chairman. Mrs. Mike Mangum was camp director. Staff members were Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, executive secretary; Mrs. Ralph Tucker, Jr., program and Primitive camping; Mrs. Harry Martin, Brownies; Mrs. Gordon Clarke, Intermediates and nurse; Mrs. Phillip DeWolfe, crafts; Mrs. R. C. Tanner, nature study; Mrs. Fred Klein and Mrs. John Cunningham, swimming.

A permanent building has been erected and a well has been dug at the new camping area which includes 35 acres. In picture above, Scouts, leaders and guests gather in the assembly area for a special program.

Members of a Primitive unit with assistance from Intermediate Girl Scouts prepare lunch for members of the Tri-City Girl Scout Council and guests who held a meeting at the new site on the last day of camp.
