

Vote As You Please - But Vote

Tomorrow (Tuesday, November 8) is election day. You have a lot to lose if you do not vote.

In the present critical world situation and with economic problems at home, men of the highest skill and capacity are needed to conduct our affairs, both nationally and locally. In our free society, the caliber of our elected officials depends upon the choice of the people.

To take part in deciding the grave issues of our time and to demonstrate to the world the vigor of our free institutions, all of us should participate in this election — at least to the extent of casting our ballots.

All of us have a big stake in the competence of the elected officials who make and administer our laws and in the positions they take in the current issues. Their actions affect such things as the amount of taxes we pay, the economic stability of our country, the type of schools our children attend, the health of the community in which we live, our very future as individuals and as a nation.

Maybe you think your vote will not matter in the final results. But you are wrong. Your vote could decide an election. Historically, one vote has had a lot to do with things in this country: President Rutherford Hayes was elected by a majority of only one electoral vote in 1876. Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr were tied in electoral votes. The House of Representatives elected Jefferson. Just one vote elected California, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Texas to statehood. More recently, the Draft Act of World War II passed the House by a single vote.

The right to vote is a priceless heritage of a free people. It is your ticket to continued freedom and the kind of government — local and national — that you want.

So, do not throw away the vote that you are entitled to cast in tomorrow's election. It may elect your candidate to office.

Intelligent voting is a basic act of good citizenship. Be a responsible citizen. Make up your own mind. Vote as you please—BUT VOTE!

Towel Mill's Leaders In Quality, Efficiency

Competition continues to be keen among the Towel Mill's weavers and loomfixers in the low seconds-high production program.

To encourage quality and efficiency in the weave room the Towel Mill each week recognizes those weavers and fixers with the best records.

The "Weavers of the Week" are those with the lowest percentage of seconds with respect to the standards for the various loom groups.

The "top" fixers are determined through a combination of low seconds and high quality on the sections for which they are responsible.

On The Job At Fieldcrest

Lucy Rakes is a hemmer in the Towel Mill Sewing Department. The terry towels are brought to her after they have been cut into various sizes by the cutters. She hems the ends, keeping the hems straight and turned properly to avoid raw edges. She backstitches each corner to prevent unraveling. After hemming, the towels go to the inspectors.

Mrs. Rakes has established a good record as a quality operator. Those familiar with her work say that she consistently turns out high production and top quality, making her a valuable member of the Towel Mill organization.
