

Safety Glasses Save Eye Of Alexander Employee

Ray Pittman (shown at left) is a "wise owl", who still has his eyesight because he was wearing safety glasses on his job in the Weave Room at the Alexander Sheeting Mill, Forest City.

He was cutting off a piece of head gear hub when a particle of steel hit the right lens of his safety glasses. He feels sure that, had he not been wearing safety glasses, his vision would have been lost in his right eye.

Mr. Pittman, a loom fixer instructor, recently received his membership certificate in the "Wise Owl Club" given by the National Association for the Prevention of Blindness. Membership in the club is comprised of industrial workers whose eyesight has been saved by the use of various types of eye protection.

Layne Twins

Keith and Kevin, 10 months old when the picture was made, are twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Layne of Norfolk, Va., and nephews of Pam Layne of the Accounts Payable Department at the General Offices. The twins' grandmother, Mrs. Ozella Layne, formerly worked as a sample clerk at the Karastan Mill.

Alexander Team Wins Sportsmanship Trophy

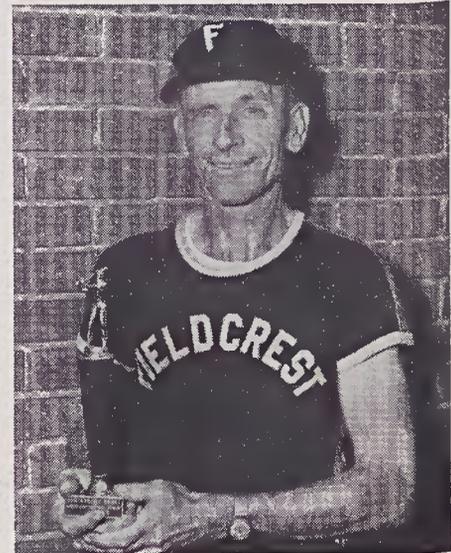

The Alexander Sheeting Mill slow pitch softball team won the sportsmanship award in the Industrial League sponsored by the Forest City Recreation Department.

Although the team won second place in the tournament, the players said they felt more honored at winning the sportsmanship trophy than they would have at winning the championship.

"Of course, all of our boys wanted to win, but most of them played for the exercise and because they really enjoyed playing ball," Manager Atchley commented.
