Yves Saint Laurent

This departure from the mystique of the Paris Salon, to a more moderately priced ready-to-wear operation is one that Saint Laurent believes in wholeheartedly.

He has said: "... Fashion is not a new dress—it is a new attitude. I never design abstractions; I design for the young ... and the young in heart ... not for the woman draped in pearls and diamonds, reclining on a chaise longue. Today's woman really moves.

"I work to bring prices down. My Paris salon is only the laboratory for the boutique. The answer is boutique-realistic prices for realistic women. My designs are for the hostess, the career girl, the young matron, the civic worker ... today, all that can exist in the same woman."

Saint Laurent recognizes the new freedom of contemporary life and has made women feel they can achieve this freedom and elegance through his designs.

National Debt Figures 'Out Of This World'

Some of us may still complain that the $24 billion spent since 1961 to put man on the moon could have been put to better use here on earth.

Imagine, however, five times that amount—$125 billion—for improving the lot of mankind.

The idea is fiction of course, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States points out, because of wasteful and sometimes foolish government spending and resulting inflation.

The $125 billion, however, is a painful fact. That's the amount paid in interest on the national debt since 1961—a figure clearly out of this world.

Night Foreman

William D. Bagley, III has been named a night foreman at the Columbus Towel Mill at Columbus, Ga.

Mr. Bagley graduated from Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., with a B.A. degree in economics. He was initially an assistant foreman and management trainee with the Columbus mill, receiving broad experience in textile manufacturing during that time.

Mr. Bagley is a native of Columbus and is married to the former Mary Hope Holley of Columbus.
