

Al Geiberger Appearance Draws Crowd

(Continued from Page One)
 team at North Carolina State University, Pete Barham and Terry Atkins, members of the Meadow Greens Country Club.

The match ended in a 33-33 tie for nine holes, three under par.

Mr. Geiberger came to Eden from Pinehurst where he participated in the World Open. He was accompanied by his wife Lynn who was with him when he visited the Fieldcrest Store.

After his appearance here, Mr. Geiberger went on to Laurel Valley, Pa., to play on the U.S. team in the Ryder Cup competition. Arnold Palmer is the captain of the U.S. team, composed of the nation's top golfers, which was to play the team from Great Britain on Palmer's own course September 18, 19, and 20.

Mr. Geiberger, a Californian who has played in the GGO for 17 years, is one of the nation's top golfers and a favorite of many fans. He won the PGA championship in 1966 and in 1974 was winner of the Sahara Invitational at Las Vegas. During the current year, which is his best year ever, he won the Tournament of Champions in April and the Tournament Players championship in August.

As one of the top money-winners in the game, Mr. Geiberger has career earnings of $788,812. He won $91,628 in prize money in 1974 and so far in 1975 has earned over $170,000, making it his best year.

At clinic, Al Geiberger demonstrates driving.

Al Geiberger gets attention of crowd as he gives pointers.

Exhibition threesome included Al Geiberger, Casey Mather, Bill Groseclose.

Woody Durham tapes interview for Channel 2 telecast.

Lennie Barton, Pete Barham and Terry Atkins were opposing threesome.

At store, Al Geiberger greets Frank Phleger and Al Hall, of Roanoke, Va.