Gloria Hilton demonstrates Heimlich maneuver with Norman Austin of Fieldcrest Medical Department. Observing are Linda Jones, public health nurse, at left, and Loretta Graves, public health aide.

Heimlich Maneuver Is Demonstrated

In the interest of saving lives through use of the Heimlich maneuver to prevent choking on food, the Fieldcrest Medical Department conducted a demonstration of the technique for the personnel of the Rockingham County Health Department.

Health Department officials requested the demonstration after learning that Fieldcrest had incorporated the Heimlich maneuver in its first aid training courses. Fieldcrest responded and arrangements for the demonstration were made by Jane Reynolds, RN, Fieldcrest supervisor of nursing services.

Two demonstrations were given with 32 Health Department representatives attending the morning and afternoon meetings in the conference room at the General Offices, conducted by Gloria Hilton, RN, of the Fieldcrest Medical Dept.

She first showed a new film explaining and demonstrating the maneuver, featuring Dr. Henry J. Heimlich, who developed the method. Dr. Heimlich is director of surgery at The Jewish Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio.

After the film and further explanation by Mrs. Hilton, the group practiced the maneuver and participated in a question-and-answer session. Informational material was given to the participants to take with them.

Fieldcrest was one of the first to incorporate the Heimlich maneuver in first aid courses. Since the instruction began at least two lives — one a child, the other an adult — have been saved because some person learned the maneuver in the Fieldcrest first aid training.

Since the first publication of the technique, Dr. Heimlich has received documented reports that the method has been used to save the lives of more than 500 persons choking on food or other foreign objects.

The Heimlich maneuver has been endorsed by the American National Red Cross and the American Medical Association. It is also used in the training programs of the Army, Navy, Air Force, the National Safety Council, and numerous state and local medical societies and departments of health.

"When you consider that there are from 4,000 to 7,000 deaths each year from choking on food," Mrs. Hilton said, "it is such a senseless waste of human life when anybody can learn this simple maneuver. I think that every possible means should be used to acquaint the public with this life-saving technique."

E. L. Teague Is Honored At Dinner

E. L. Teague, who retired effective January 1, was honored recently by a number of his fellow employees in the Traffic Department at a dinner at the Bonanza restaurant. He had been a chauffeur with Fieldcrest for 23 years.

At the dinner, he was presented a gift by Claudine Tiller representing a large number of people at the General Offices. Those present at the dinner included R. A. Puckett, traffic manager — carpets; Ruby Ann Bousman, Purchasing Department; Katherine Manley,
