Retiree Receives Honors For Hours As Volunteer

Spending more than 1,000 hours in a hospital may not be a pleasant task for many people, but a former Fieldcrest employee has done just that and finds the experience interesting as well as rewarding.

Ethel Adkins, retiree of the Draper Sheeting Mill, recently was honored as the sole 1977 recipient of a 1,000-hour pin for completing 1,245 hours of volunteer service at the Morehead Memorial Hospital.

At her retirement seven years ago, after 33 years of service at Fieldcrest, Mrs. Adkins was looking forward to her first experience doing volunteer work in a hospital. She began working four hours on Sundays and now often substitutes for other volunteers during the week also.

Mrs. Adkins works at the visitor's desk and enjoys her work because "I get to meet new people and see so many people I already know," she said.

Other Fieldcresters honored at a recent annual volunteer luncheon included Daisy Chambers, retired from Blanket Greige Mill; and Lillian Fulcher, retired from Blanket Finishing Mill, each receiving a 700-hour pin. Anne Gilley, Accounting Department, and Ruby Riddle, retired from Draper Sheeting Mill, received 600-hour pins.

Four-hundred-hour pins were awarded to Edna Adkins, retired from Blanket Greige Mill; Mae Austin, retired from Blanket Finishing Mill; Margaret Corum, Blanket Greige Mill, and Mayme Richardson, retired from Sheet Finishing Mill.

Madeline Corum, Sheet Finishing Mill, received a 300-hour pin and Helen Robertson, Cash-Collections Department, received a 100-hour pin.

Contest winner Mary Raynor, center, with Edsel W. Johnson, shift foreman-Control Assembly Department, and Thomas W. Bridges, area personnel manager.

Employee Wins Canteen Contest

The renovation of the Canteen at the Automatic Blanket Plant has been completed and the Canteen has even received a name.

A contest was held among Automatic Blanket employees to give the new facility a name. The winner was Mary Raynor, Control Assembly Department, whose winning entry was "Nic-Nac". She received a $25 U.S. Savings Bond.

Judges were one employee from each department.

The renovation was completed on March 28.

employees and other friends stopped in to say goodbye and to wish the Marlowes well. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Marlowe, special guests were two of their daughters, Mrs. Pam Dove and Mrs. Jean Hand.

Cake and punch were served by members of the Industrial Relations Department. Also, a large cake decorated like a front page of The Mill Whistle was presented to the Marlowes. The headline, inscribed in icing, said "Congratulations Mr. Otis Marlowe on Your Retirement From Fieldcrest.

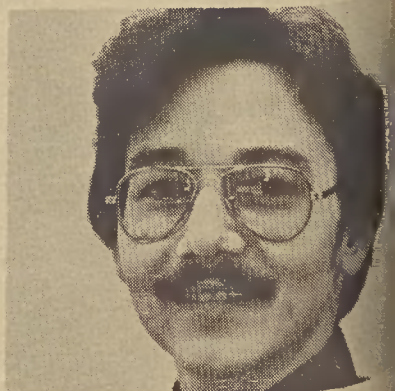

Retiree Ethel Adkins is one of many Fieldcrest employees and retirees who do volunteer work at Morehead Memorial Hospital in Edgewater. She has served more than 1,000 hours at the visitor's permit desk.

DONALD WILSON

Fieldcrest Scholar On Honor Roll

Donald E. Wilson, an honor student at Oral Roberts University (ORU) in Tulsa, Okla., was named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the first semester. He also was named to the Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities.

A Fieldcrest Scholarship recipient, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson of Columbus, Ga. His father was a Wackenhut security guard at Sheet Metal and was employed at the Columbus Towel Mill at the time of his death. Donald received the scholarship.

Donald will graduate from ORU in May with a degree in International Business.

THE MILL WHISTLE

Decorating Books

known women's consumer magazines from Vogue to Better Homes and Gardens have resulted in a landslide of requests that have required three press runs. Over 15,000 books have been mailed to consumers, who pay the small price of $1.00 per copy. (The remaining 13,000 have been sent to various stores that participate in Fieldcrest Publicity Events.)

A similarly titled video tape and film, starring Judy Lindahl, are in use in many stores and by extension home economists and university home economics teachers as training aids.

Any Fieldcrest employee wishing to obtain a copy of the Decorating Digest may do so by contacting his or her area personnel manager.
