

Karastan Worsted Mill, Non-Woven Mill

Safety Barbecues Held At Two Locations

She helped achieve 132,520 safe hours at the Non-Woven Mill. Bloomer Hampton enjoys her barbecue.

Employees in two locations were recently honored for their fine safety records with in-plant safety barbecue dinners on all shifts.

Employees at the Karastan Worsted Plant enjoyed a safety barbecue on April 26, in honor of achieving 4,604 average hours per employee without a lost-time accident. They had worked a total of 250,577 safe hours.

Mike Strother, plant manager, said, "I'm extremely proud of all of these employees. Each one has done his or her part in making our plant a safe place to work and I know that each one will continue to do so."

Employees at the Non-Woven Mill were treated to a barbecue on May 3. These employees had achieved 2,181 average hours per employee without a disabling injury, and a total of 132,520 safe hours.

W. F. Robertson, plant manager-Blanket Greige Mills, thanked all the Non-Woven employees for their safety performance and for their fine work throughout the year. "I think it is really wonderful that you have achieved this great safety record," he said. "It's a real pleasure to work with such great people. I know you will keep up your fine work in the coming months," he concluded.

W. F. Robertson, right, thanks Non-Woven employees for their fine safety record.

Karastan Worsted employees getting barbecue.

Digging in — Two Karastan Worsted employees really seem to be enjoying their barbecue.