

A Different Something

By: Shannon Ann Hodgins
Staff Writer

If you are the artsy type and enjoy a bit of an adventure on occasion, there is a place you may like to try. Malaprop's, a bookstore and cafe, located on 67 N. Lexington Avenue in Asheville is great for reading, eating, and generally being merry. Malaprop's also has interesting specialty items, such as calendars, bookmarks, music, and buttons.

Located upstairs in Malaprop's is a bookstore which has a wide variety of books to choose from. These books are reasonably priced and affordable, which is quite convenient for the student bookworm. Selections range from classic literature to modern 20th century poetry, non-fiction and fiction. In addition, they have goodies such as calendars you won't find in the average bookstore.

As you walk down the stairs you will find a small cafe which serves everything from espresso to bagels to sandwiches, and many assorted drinks. Coffee seems to be the favorite among the regulars. There is also a small section outside where you may relax and enjoy the fresh air with your meal or a book.

I enjoyed going there and must say I intend to return. The prices for everything are reasonable, the people are very friendly, and it is a neat place to go if you enjoy experiencing some of the more offbeat things life has to offer.

If you are an English major, this place is a must-try for you.

Makin' it great!

502 W State St. Black Mountain

First Pizza
Regular Price
Second, Third, Fourth,
and Fifth
$4.00 each

Good Thru 11/7/90 w/ Coupon

Part-Time Ministry Opportunity

Faith Presbyterian Church in Morganton, NC is seeking someone to lead a children's worship service for about one-half hour each Sunday morning. The pay is $5.00 plus $.20 a mile reimbursement for travel. For more information contact the Rev. Charles Wingard, (704)433-8057 [office] or (704)433-7052 [home].

Great Wall Of China.

China's door is open. The English Language Institute/China (ELIC) is looking for Christians to use their education, experience, and skills in a rare teaching/ministry opportunity. Summer and year positions are available. To find out more, please call ELIC at 1-800-FON-ELIC.