

A Helping Hand

"He's always there when you need him; he'll put people above himself. He's willing to put down whatever he is doing if you need to talk to him. He is diligently concerned about students' ideas and situations. He tries to make sure that the students' voice is heard."—Margaret Spearman

Who is this superhero? It is Al Goodman. Al is a very active junior here at Montreat; he is double majoring in English and Family Sciences, producing a play, acting as Resident Assistant at McGregor, Secretary/Treasurer for SGA, an active member of the Student Activities Committee, and Chairperson of the Constitutional Revision Committee.

Although Al is very committed, he always finds time for people. He makes time to console as well as put people on their toes. "I like a practical joke, every now and then," innocently declares Al. Al also claims not to be Gossip Monger; instead, he likes to think of himself as "the person who relays information to the masses."

As a Junior Al is nearing graduation and a new life. After graduation, Al hopes to do some graduate work at Regent College. He intends to teach English at a college similar to Montreat-Anderson. "It's done so much for me; I'd just love to give back," Al nobly inspires. When Al arrived at Montreat, it was his first time on the campus; he says that he fell in love with it. "The people were so friendly," Al recalls his first impression of Montreat-

Anderson College. He says that at a school like Montreat, one has a chance to get to know everyone on campus. After two and a half years here, Al would like "to see more unity, not only among students, but among faculty and administration which would enable a more Christ-centered education," but Al says that it was here that he became a Christian. Over the next summer Al plans to do missionary work in Mexico with the Spearhead Organization; he is very excited about being able to participate in this experience.
