

FEATURES

Take It or Leave It

By Donna Buggs

Page 37 of the student handbook states that, "Under the Honor Code, you, the student are on your honor not to lie, cheat, or steal, and if you do, you are on your honor to report yourself within 24 hours to a member of the Honor Council. If you see another student lying, cheating, or stealing, you are on your honor to report him, with the option of asking him to report himself to a member of the Honor Council or to report him to an employee of the college."

Is this a good system that is reliable and supports the true outcome of justice? The viewpoints of members of the administration, faculty, and student body are reported.

Dean Hargrove believes that the Honor Code system will make a student aware that he, or she, is responsible for himself, or herself, and that following it, "brings about success." Dean Hargrove also believes that the Honor Code system is reliable, and he supports and enforces it completely.

Mr. Batson, a business professor at Montreat-Anderson, thinks that the Honor Code defines M-AC and strongly suggests that all students follow the system. Dr. Chesky, head of the English education department, is in favor of the Honor Code because, "Professors don't act like police officers."

On the other hand, the student body has mixed opinions. Jennifer (Bull) Stirnett, a freshman, says that, "It's none of your business what another person does." Yolonda McMullen, a second year student, also does not agree with the Honor Code. She says that one should not tell on one's peers because they will be given justice by God. Cameron Scott, a second semester junior at Montreat, believes that the Honor Code is good but also says that, "Very few students will adhere to this rule because it can bring about bad blood among the students." Mike Zolt, a senior at Montreat and a business major, says that, "Someone who cheats should be disciplined," and completely agrees with the Honor Code System.

No matter how anyone feels, the Honor Code is now a part of the Montreat-Anderson Student Judicial System and all students and faculty members should adhere to it whether the system is reliable or not.

Photo Courtesy of PR Department
Students awaiting to be enrolled in this year's classes.

SCA - "Seeking the Kingdom"

By Kim Holt

Throughout the campus there has arisen great hope for the new school year. With this new hope comes the echoing demand for revival on our campus, a renewed interest in the spiritual lives of each student at Montreat-Anderson. Ron Nicholas of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship says that "if a campus is to be confronted with the greatness of Christ, it would require the involvement of every Christian on campus." Involvement is the key to our revival.

The Student Christian Association plans to be a major part of this revival. SCA President, Rhonda Littlejohn, says, "We want to get people excited about a personal relationship with Jesus Christ through Christian Fellowship and SCA-sponsored activities." Her goal is for students to become more unified before God and to "encourage each other spiritually."

The SCA off-campus ministries include the Black Mountain Center, a treatment center for the mentally and physically handicapped. This ministry is led by Kenneth Graham. The Juvenile Evaluation Center ministry is led this year by Debbie Crain. The Children's Home ministry is being led by Mark Tucker, Joanna Knowles, and Lynn Vaught. These off-campus ministries are organized by Kurt Rothgeb.

On-campus ministries include the Vespers program led by Rebecca Bush, Tom McMurtry, and Evan Llewelyn. The Vespers theme this year is "Seeking the World for Jesus Christ One Person at a Time."

On-campus co-ordinator Sara Swinson is organizing the small group studies that began the week of September 9th. If you are interested in being a member of a small group Bible study, it is not too late.

The missions co-ordinator this year is Sonja Gentry. The Missions Conference is scheduled for October. SCA is still looking to fill the positions of Dogwood Manor co-ordinator and Habitat for Humanity representative. If you are interested in being involved this year with SCA and its many different opportunities to serve, speak with Rhonda Littlejohn. Get involved this year and play your part in the new revival.

Interact

Sunday Mornings

9:45

BCC Mall Area