By Justin P. Ramb
Staff Writer

As many of you know, after twelve successful seasons in the NBA, it all must come to a dramatic close for Earvin "Magic" Johnson. With his announcement last Thursday of his positive tests of the HIV virus, he needs all the support he can get at this time. For many years he has entertained us with his "Magic," let us now entertain him with our love. If you would like to send him a card or note, here is the address:

Unfortunately, several students have submitted Agenda Request slips and then failed to attend the Legislative meetings. Such suggestions include keeping the Belk Center open extended hours and moving the big screen T.V. from third floor Belk to the mall area.

Anonymous suggestions don't get very far without someone to back them up at the meeting. If you really want to see change, come to S.G.A. Legislative meetings on Monday nights and let your voice be heard by people who want to serve you.

Spotlight: Steve Barrett

By Tara Paquette
Staff Writer

After playing soccer for 25 years, Steve Barrett has yet to lose his enthusiasm for soccer. Originally from England, Steve has played soccer all his life. The first organized team he played on was the Cub Scout team when he was about 7 years old. He continued to play throughout middle and high school. He graduated from high school at 16 years of age and then spent several years working until he was offered a full soccer scholarship to Liberty University.

In January of 1984, Steve arrived in the states to pursue a college education. He spent the full four years at Liberty; it was here that he met his wife, Tina. After graduating from Liberty, he attended Virginia Tech. for two additional years where he was awarded a masters degree in sports management.

Steve Barrett did not return to England because "there are more opportunities in America" and also because he had "built foundations" over here during his six years of education.

Tina Barrett is from Detroit, Michigan. She graduated from Liberty University with a degree in physical education. She is presently a full time mother to her young son, Austen, who was born April 11, 1991. This does not give her a lot of free time, but she is helping the yearbook staff with the production of the Agape.

Steve has proved to be a great asset to Montreat. He is easy to work with and he interacts well with the students. "It is a great opportunity to begin coaching at a Christian school," commented Steve, "I'm happy here."
