behind but not next to the library.

Mytreat-Andyorcent Hall: Students may park in front of the dorm and beside the library but do not drive in front of the dorm (must turn off engines and coast into parking spaces).

Davis Hall: Students must park on the east side of the gym and wait for the campus trolley to transport them to their dorm. Trolley stops every two hours-if you are in a hurry, you should hike to Davis Hall between the hours of 1:00 am and 3:00 am.

Between the Welk Campus Center and the Library: No students. Faculty may park here if their cars are less than four feet wide and five feet in length or less.

Commuter Students: Should park on lower southeast end of Welk Campus Center Lot and walk. You may catch a ride with the circling students who do not know where to park. Be aware that resident students do drive to this lot to park in bad weather, if no places are available, park in the conference center lots at your own risk.

Gator Hall: Faculty may park on northeast side of Gator between 8:00 am and 8:00 pm every other day, except on Tuesday. No one except once per week visitors are allowed to park in front of Gator Hall. If anyone (including consecutive visitors) parks here, the Dean of Students Affairs will be alerted. He will then activate the PERS (Parking Emergency Response System) button. This device is located somewhere on the Dean at all times. A sharp, piercing alarm will sound throughout campus and all students and faculty will rush to the lot and proceed to bash the offending car with sledge hammers (hammers provided by Parking Police R'Us).

WARNING: Violator should not attempt to rescue his or her vehicle. Violator should proceed immediately to the Chapel.

Parking 101: This class is offered each semester for those with two or more tickets per semester: Fee is three hundred dollars.

Remember: Parking is a privilege, not a right.

Stickers may be purchased every other day, except the fourth Monday and the second Thursday of all months starting with the letter "J".

Fees for Stickers: For faculty before Thanksgiving, ten dollars; after Christmas, thirty dollars. For staff before Thanksgiving, twenty-five cents; after Christmas, fifty dollars. For students before Thanksgiving, eighty-five dollars; after Christmas, one hundred and fifty dollars. All stickers purchased after Spring Break are one hundred dollars

Observing

time:

*It is Christmas time and many of us will be going crazy trying to find that last minute item. Let us stop and observe what Christmas actually is and what it means. Let us observe and take part in the project of helping a family out for Christmas. Each dorm has chosen to take on at least one family to help it through this Christmas. Howerton and Davis dorms had a stereotype that they wouldn't bother doing anything because they were manly. But it is not that, it is just recognizing that there are indeed TRUE people that need help. Let us all observe this and give as much as we possibly can.

*The other item I think we should observe is the friendships around us here at good-old Montreat-Anderson College. Many of us have made everlasting relationships that will live on in our memories forever. Everything may be really bad but you shall know that your friends are there for you. Observe these friendships and before you leave to return home, stop and say thanks for the great friendship.

Merry Christmas to all.....

C. S. Lewis Society

By Don King

In Studies in Words. C.S. Lewis claims that modern students have difficulty with early English literature because they often misunderstand the early or original meaning of a word for its modern English derivative. He says that "one of my aims is to facilitate, as regards certain words, a more accurate reading of old books; and therefore to encourage everyone to similar exploration of many other words." What follows in the book is a facile yet closely argued discussion of words like nature, sad, wit, free, and sense. The C.S. Lewis Society meets every month in the lounge of the Belk Campus Center. The reading schedule for next year is:

January 20 The Screwtape Letters
February 17 Christian Reflections
March 16 Phantasies by George MacDonald
April 20 A Grief Observed
May 18 Letters to Children
September 21 And God Came In by Lyle Dorsett
October 19 Mere Christianity
November 16 Jack: C.S. Lewis and His Times by George Sayer

I will have the college bookstore purchase copies of these books for your convenience. I hope you look forward as much as I do to reading these books next year.
