

Free Tickets Denied

By Jeffrey Reardon

The furor over whether students would be given free tickets to the North Carolina Shakespeare Festival's production of Much Ado About Nothing finally made its way before the Student Government Legislative this past Tuesday.

Wrapped in controversy, the issue has been upgraded from whispered gripes to a petition bearing eighty seven student signatures.

Action began last week when select students learned that Student Activities had not purchased or planned to purchase tickets for the students as has been then tradition for the last three years.

Former Junior Class President Jamie King fashioned a petition that she circulated accruing written concern from 29% of the student population.

King stated, "if the 'powers that be' can't see the significance of this survey or the importance of these tickets, then they aren't representing the students properly."

Jurisdiction is the problem that remains. Because Student Activities is a function of Student Government via Student Activities Chair Jennifer Stinnett, SGA should have the power to require the tickets to be purchased.

However, Student Activities is also a function of the administration with Cary Willcox at the helm.

SGA President Mark Wright commented, "This (purchasing of tickets) is definitely a student demand. ... It is something that we must take action

Foul Smell Permeates Campus

By J. R. Cunningham

Many students have recognized the awful stench of skunk spray in the air this Fall. True, the odor did invade much of the dormitory and campus areas last year, but it seems as if the unmistakable smell of skunk spray is more apparent this year than ever before.

There have been numerous complaints from students of skunks invading the premises of Davis Dorm, around the Biology Building, and even on Montreat Road.

Remains of a skunk that someone pulverized into the asphalt just past Montreat Gate lingered for weeks after the incident. Many students said that the driver who splattered the skunk brought the smell back to campus with him causing nausea and paranoia.

Biology professor Brad Daniels gave insight on the skunk problem and what exactly we can do to prevent it.

"I've seen some [skunks] over

The World Series Invades Cav Baseball

By Jonathan Bennett

The Cavalier World Series is a best out of five innersquad match-up that brings the fall baseball season to a close. The difference between these games and all the others on the schedule is that the coaches play no role in the outcomes of these games. The teams are chosen and coached by the players.

On Sunday of this week the captains had the draft. The sides were chosen and the players were split up. There are 36 players which puts 18 on a side. These two teams are led by their respective captains: Shawn Wills and Chris Hoyle head up the M-AC Mashers while Shane Hatcher and Chris Robertson on." An open-minded Jennifer Stinnett expressed the attitude of Student Activities, "If free tickets is what the students want, then that is what we will give to them."

Stinnett went on to say that if an opinion concerning this matter is to be heard, it must be voiced at the next Student Activities Committee meeting scheduled for 3 p.m. on Wednesday, October 26.

Student opinions range from outrage to unconcern.

Anu-Riikka Henriksson, Montreat thespian, responded, "I got sucked into drama because of the Shakespeare Festival. If my first ticket hadn't been free, I never would have gone."

Conversely, Junior Matt Horner laughed, "I'm not interested in this Shakespeare stuff."

at the Biology building and the main reason is because of the lack of attention the garbage people have shown to it."

Daniels stated that the sanitation crew didn't pick up the trash on some days and the skunks came out to dig around for some food.

Daniels suggested a logical solution to the problem, "No food or food related items should be openly dumped around campus. Skunks have a keen sense of smell and can detect any item that they could eat."

Freshman Davis Dorm Resident Josh Cunningham stated, "I don't even like Pepe LePeu anymore."

Some more serious students such as Tyrone Jones said that he won't even come near Davis Dorm at night because of fear he might be sprayed.

Some other students are simply perturbed about this matter. Harvey Lingerfelt stated, "I don't like it--it stinks."

lead the M-AC Stokers.

Wills, the Cavs senior catcher, expressed, "It's going to be real intense but it's going to be fun too, as we end up our fall season."

Hatcher, the pitching ace for the Cavs commented, "The Series gives everybody a chance to play and it helps build team leadership."

Wills added, "It also gives the freshman time to show the coaches what they can do. It's the last time the coaches can see us play until the spring season."

When asked about his teams chances, Wills boasted, "My team's gonna win."

Hatcher then responded, "Actions speak louder than words."

The catch of the whole World Series is that the losing team must take the winners out to eat, and none of the players want to dish out any money out to see their teammates enjoy a good meal.

The weather over the next few days is not looking good for baseball. Rain is in the forecast for this week which may put the World Series on the back burner. Junior, Bud Roberts commented, "Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose and sometimes you get rained out."

The captains are happy about their fall season and are looking forward to spring.

The Cavalier baseball team will be fighting for the conference title come this spring.

They are deep at every position and they should have enough talent and experience to really make a mark in the Tennessee Valley Athletic Conference.

Greybeard Players Announce Cast Lists

By Chris Howard

The Greybeard Players announced the casts of two productions for this fall and have begun practices.

Bill W. and Dr. Bob, this semester's full length production, has a cast of eight actors. The lead characters will be portrayed by Joe Troutman as Bill W. and Rod Steward as Dr. Bob.

A few weeks before the performance of King's play, the Greybeard Players will put on a one act, Whence. Two parts were available in Whence, one male and one female. Under the instruction of Director Miriam Chapen, Anu-Rikka Henriksson and Jeff Reardon are currently rehearsing four times a week. Performance dates will be November 9 and 10.

In Bill W. and Dr. Bob, Bill's wife, Lois, will be portrayed by Kat Ballou. Meredith Hoover will play Bob's wife, Anne. The extra woman parts are covered by Kerie Peterson.

"The male part was split three different ways. It was an overload for one actor, and for those working in costumes and make-up," explained King. Tim Hatton, Scott Ward, and Chris Howard will share the part of the man.

Hu Brother Fulfills Acting Dream

By Aron Gabriel

The Hu brothers, William and David, work in the cafeteria, serving the students of M-AC.

The brothers came to M-AC via Peking, China in 1986. Their parents had acquaintances that were friends with the M-AC President Vaughn. Through this connection, the Hu brothers made their way to campus.

They were two weeks late for classes, so they decided to go to Maryville College. They studied English for 10 weeks and then returned in the spring of 1987. They graduated in 1990, with David earning a degree in business administration, and William receiving a degree in English communications.

William has recently fulfilled his life-long dream of acting as he participated in a Walt Disney film, Heavy Weights. The movie was filmed in Hendersonville, and William informed that they movie is about "fat boys".

William played one of the Henchman. He will be very recognizable in the movie.

Heavy Weights is produced by the same man who produced the hit movies Mighty Ducks and Mighty Ducks II. The movie should hit the theaters this month.

William asserted, "Without M-AC, I don't know where my brother and I would be. This place has been very good to us."
