

MEDICAL SUPPLY

"Who's next and where?" This seems to be the prevailing question among us. Only a short while back we were fifty-six strong. Then came the first call and ten of our men were transferred to Newport News, Va. Shortly afterwards, four more were sent to Waco, Texas, and these were followed by two who were sent to Camp Humphries, Va. While we hated to see these boys leave us, especially Hoblitzell and Rosenshine, who were two of the reasons why we had a good ball team, still Uncle Sam knows best, and the War comes FIRST. We still stand 40 strong, ready for further calls. "Who's next and where?"

Say, isn't it hard to get accustomed to saying Captain Darling? Don't get that "captain" too strongly impressed on your minds, however. He's not through climbing yet.

Pat Singer, who had put six months in the merchant marine and nine months in different camps before coming among us, was the first man in the detachment to be granted a furlough.

"Bill" Wilson, who, up until Sunday, claimed the Checker Championship of the Detachment, lost his crown to "Quicksilver" Weaver, who trimmed him in four out of five games. Since then, Bill seems to have lost his nerve and has lost game after game to men who previously have been "pie" for him.

Corporal Fitzgerald gave the order "Right Dress," then without the necessary "Front," started to read an official bulletin. Then he wondered why he did not have the attention of the detachment.

First Sergeant Eakes has just returned from a ten-day furlough spent in his home state, Georgia. In his account of the trip, the Sgt. is particularly glowing in his description of the peach crop. The inference drawn from subsequent occurrences leads us to believe that the "peaches" referred to were not of the fruit variety.

"Doc" Stockard, who was married the day before he came to camp, went home on a "forty-eight" Saturday afternoon to get an introduction to his wife.

Who said, "fighting" Medical Supply? When Tom Goldman gets an average of eight letters a day and answers them at the same ratio, shouldn't it be the "Writing" Medical Supply?

MADE ORDER SERGEANT.

Sergeant Leighton has been made order sergeant for the base hospital detachment. His duties started on Tuesday when he conducted sick call. He will see to it that all assignments are carried out properly and that fatigue duty is conducted with due diligence.

K. OF C. ACTIVITIES.

Entertainments of unusual merit were given Thursday night, June 13, in K. of C. buildings. The amusements were held in the airdromes. A vaudeville featured the affair at No. 1 building, while boxing was the main bill at No. 2.

The talent from Charlotte made quite a hit. The "nigger" dialect of Miss Rosalie Jones, of Charlotte, was very amusing. The imitated a "nigger" woman by talking over the 'phone.

Miss Blanch Manning, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Manning, of the city, was another attractive card.

Some clever passes in boxing were illustrated when Sergeant Picard, of the Fourth Company, Third Regiment, M. M., and Leo R. Crevier, of the Eleventh Company, Third Regiment, M. M., met in the ring. Private John Trainor refereed.

The K. of C. shows wouldn't be up to top notch if the audience didn't see "Black Dot" Carolina Brunson and Sergeant Taylor, the comedian, formerly with Barnum & Bailey.

J. Lynn Griffin rendered pleasing solos. Frank Crapo gave several tenor solos. He is considered one of the best tenor singers in the camp.

Frank Tronolone, the singing pianist, did his usual stunt. He sang popular airs while playing.

The aviation jazz band, which rendered the music, was at its best.

REV. MILTON SPEAKS.

The Rev. William H. Milton, D. D., rector of the St. James Episcopal church, Wilmington, N. C., and a representative of the Episcopal war commission, who has visited a large number of military camps and cantonments in the southeastern department, spoke in the "Y" on Friday evening. The need for entering into a larger and richer Christian life was the subject of the address. Prof. D. W. Milam, Y. M. C. A. camp singer, conducted the singing. Miss Summerrow of Charlotte, a contralto, sang with much effect Ashford's "My Task," and Private C. W. Gates sang "The Lost Chord."

TWO GOOD SERVICES.

The home hour this week was in charge of the young people from the Steel Creek Presbyterian church, a church that has the reputation of being the largest rural church in the South. About fifty representatives from the church were present and they gave an entertaining program of song, recitations and choruses.

Secretary Davies was the speaker in the evening. "The Venture of Faith," based on the Scriptural incident of Abraham's leaving Mesopotamia for Canaan, was the subject. This passing into new countries or worlds, the speaker said, was characteristic of every growing life. The war has created a new world into which we must enter. The important thing is to enter into these countries with the spirit of thoroughness, faith and unselfishness that characterized Abraham.
