BEST O' LUCK

ONE OF BOOKS TO READ BEFORE SAILING.

"Best O'Luck" is one of the proper books for officers and nurses and orderlies to read just before their unit starts to the place that the Kaiser is worrying about just now.

Others are "Winning the War" and a half-dozen manuals on how to act as a private or officer. There are a number of smashing good war stories which will furnish good tonics for those who are to smell the battle smoke, believes Marie Fox Wait, the Librarian at the Base Hospital Library.

Miss Wait has prepared a list of books to "read just before sailing" and which are to be found at the Hospital Library. Here is gamut of thrills and teachers that Miss Wait has found proper to personally recommend for those who know they are soon to travel.

Andrews—Fundamentals of Military Service.

Baker—Frontiers of Freedom.

Bunkley—Military and Naval Recognition Book.

Campbell—Rapid Training of Recruits.

Davis — Handbook of Northern France.

Dunn—Traveling Under Orders.

Fales—Learning To Fly In the U. S. Army.

Fisher and Fisk—Health for the Soldier and Sailor.

Fosdick—Keeping Our Fighters Fit.

Gill—Flyer's Guide.

Hazen—Alsace-Lorraine.

Holt and Chilton—European History, 1862-1914,

Howe—Universal Military Training.

Knyvett—Over There With the Australians.

McArthur—What a Company Officer Should Know.

McBride—The Emma Gees.

McClintock—Best O'Luck.

McQuarrie—How To Live At the Front.

Moore—Keeping In Condition.

Moss—Non-Commissioned Officer's Manual.

Moss—Officers' Manual.

Moss—Privates' Manual.

Stacey—Company Training.

U. S.—Field Artillery Manual.

Usher—Winning of the War.

Vickers—Training for the Trenches.

White—Military Signal Corps Manual.

Whitten & Long—French for Soldiers.

Wilkins & Coleman—Army French.

Williams—Army and Navy Uniforms and Insignia.

TWO LIEUTENANTS.

Two second-lieutenants in the sanitary department have reported for duty at the U. S. Army Base Hospital, Camp Greene, during the past week. They are Lieutenants Irving E. Tier and Raymond R. Mitchell. Both men sent to Camp Greene from Washington, D. C., where they had been on detached service.
