ANOTHER MAJOR

FRANK LAHEY OF BOSTON ON OPERATING ROOM STAFF.

Among the recent assignments to the U. S. Army base hospital, Camp Greene, N. C., we find the name of Major Frank Lahey of Boston, Mass.

Major Lahey was a surgeon of considerable prominence in and about the Hub city having been connected with the Boston City hospital for a number of years, and Tufts Medical School at the University there.

Upon entering the services on June 29 last he was awarded a commission as captain but unusual abilities soon won promotion for him and on the twentieth of July he received his commission to the rank of major.

His first duties here called him to the receiving ward where he had charge of that department for some time, this week, however, he was transferred to duty on the operating room staff.

Captain Darling entertained Majors Lahey and Wayland, and Captain Stockard with an automobile ride last Monday evening. The report is that they were in high all the time. Things went very nicely until it was discovered that Major Wayland started the ride in the phase of respiration known as expiration and had not caught his breath since the beginning of the ride. Waiting for the major to adjust his breathing apparatus made the party a few seconds late in getting home.

GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

Major Hubbard, who was chief of the surgical service here for three months, has gone to Allentown to join Base Hospital No. 92. If all the officers who want to go with Major Hubbard, are assigned by the war department, he will have a good compliment for them from base hospital, Camp Greene.

Capt. William P. Evans, who for the past eight months has been receiving officer of this hospital, left last week for the base hospital at Camp Merritt, where he has charge of two medical wards. During his stay at Camp Green the captain madem any friends who were sorry to see him go. One by one the old guard who keeps the lamps trimmed and burning during the winter, are leaving us. There is a twinge of sadness in saying good-bye to them.

Lieutenant Tidmarsh, formerly of this hospital, who has been taking the Dakin Course at the Rockefeller Institute, New York, is now at Camp Lee, Va.

Mrs. Young is visiting her husband, Captain Young.

NEW MANAGER ARRIVES.

H. L. Brundage arrived last Wednesday to take charge of the Soldiers' Club. Mr. Brundage is a Club expert and thoroughly understands his work. He comes direct from New York from which he was sent by the War Camp Community Service.

TOOK DAKIN COURSE.

Captain Cook, Lieutenants C. C. Cleveland and William L. Munson, who have been taking the Dakin Course at the Rockefeller Institute in New York and have returned to this station for duty.

MACK RETURNS.

Secretary Ed. McMann, after being absent from duty from the Base Hospital, K. of C. building for a month on account of injuries to his knee, is back on the job again.

The boys at the camp are very glad to see Mack at his post again.

JUST FOR FUN.

It happened in New York.

Lieutenant: "Does this car stop at the Battery?"

Irish Conductor: "If it don't be gobs you're going to have a good swim."

—Captain Darling.

One morning the major of the battalion took a particularly well-drilled company out for their morning drill and afterwards he made a nice little speech to the men telling them how well they did and how good they looked.

Pat, who had not been in the service so very long, thought that he would compliment his drill master, which was done after this fashion:

"Be jakers, sergeant, that was a dandy speech you made us."

"Why I'm not a sergeant. I'm a major."

"Don't worry," responded the Celt, "you soon will be a sergeant, you're a dang smart fellow."

—Lieutenant Munson.
