

THE CADUCEUS

LEARNING THE ART OF MERCY

Student Nurses at the U. S. Army Base Hospital, Camp Greene.

In their eager faces can be read the spirit with which the group of student nurses are taking up their studies to prepare them for duty "for God and country." The above picture was taken on the steps of the Nurses' Training School building and just before the call to afternoon classes. These probationers, who are gathered from seven different states, and who have been at the hospital but a few weeks, have already been used in active duty of assisting to care for the influenza patients who crowded the wards a week ago. The grades of all the present band of probationers are running high, as the early tests show, and which exemplifies the more their earnestness in the cause and their desire to be able to become real army nurses.

Second row: Miss Georgia May Ferris, Miss Annette Moore, Miss Elizabeth Hansbrough, Miss Anna Truempler, Miss Vera Callaghan, Miss Charlotte Mason, Miss Rena Davis.

Third row: Miss Margaret Martin, Miss Beulah Wiedman, Miss Helen Ely, Miss Katharine Everett, Miss Patricia Guion, Miss Carolina Strong.

Fourth row: Miss Grace English, Miss Wilda Getty, Miss Emma Miller, Miss Kathryn Cressman.

Fifth row: Miss Corrie Ramsdell, Miss Grace Villemonte, Miss Mazie Nichols, Miss Vivian Atwood, Miss Adelia Kendrick, Miss Anna Armstrong.
