MAKING PROGRESS

STUDENT GOVERNMENT SOON TO BE LAUNCHED.

After two weeks of forging and welding, the constitution, which is to point the way for the self government of the Student Nurses of the U. S. Army Base Hospital, Camp Greene, has been completed. It is now to be sanctioned by Lieutenant-Colonel George A. Renn, hospital commander, and by Miss Susan G. Parish, chief nurse.

It is expected that the student self-government will be in full swing before the end of next week.

Miss Georgia Farris has acted as temporary chairman during the period that the constitution has been in the forming. The executive committee has been made up of Misses Cockrell, Offett, Miller and Hickock. Rare abilities have been shown in meeting certain topics of parliamentary proceedings.

Major H. W. Way, head of the reconstruction service of the base hospital, delivered an address before the Student Nurse body on last Friday afternoon. He discussed phases of army discipline and the importance of the written law and traditions governing military behavior.

Lieutenant-Colonel Renn talked before the probationers on Thursday afternoon. He outlined for them what would be expected if they continued their army service.

After the constitution for governing the student nurses has been adopted the first move will be the election of permanent officers. At the head will be the commanding officer of the Student Nursing School of the U. S. Army Base Hospital, Camp Greene. There will be a captain elected for each student nurse class and two lieutenants for each class. There are two classes enrolled at the hospital at the present time.

The commanding officer must come from the ranks of the senior class, the new law sets out, and will hold office for six months. The coming election has already brought out marked political abilities in some of the student nurses. Who will win the highest honors is yet very much in the dark.

Progress in framing the fundamental law of the embryo society has necessarily been retarded by debates on topics which were presented for con-

Thirty probationers attended in a body the production of The Auctioneer, in which David Warfield played the leading role at the Auditorium on Monday night. Many of the hospital officers, nurses and enlisted men were also among those present.

THAT MORNING ALARM

IT GETS THE NURSES ALSO

"Some day I'm going to kill the bugler,
Some day they're going to find him dead"

Is a favorite song at the detachment while the nurses are striving to think up a parody on "Some day I'm goin' to" mop up "with the bell ringer." For the nurses "also serve" and being in the service have "to get up in the morning." Their awakening alarm is a hand bell which sounds along the hall ways at an early hour.

One of The Caduceus cartoonists has pictured that moment of awakening and in order to dodge the accusation depicting the emotions of any one of the nurses has drawn a wierd likeness of nobody in particular.

sideration as a part of the constitution. In every case the subjects under discussion were finally settled by unanimous consent. Miss Jackson held out for two days against the fixing of the breakfast hour at 6:30, it is stated.

LOSE SEVEN

SEVERAL PROBATIONERS TO RETURN HOME.

Seven student nurses have been granted relief by government order during the past week and will leave at once for their home. They had requested immediate discharge on the grounds that they do not desire to follow their nurse training further, now that the war is over.

Those who have been discharged are Misses Annette Moore, Lynchburg, Va.; Ruth Pierce, Indianapolis; Mazie Nicholas, Hazelton, Pa.; Ida Johnson, Princeton, Ky.; Rena Davis, Philadelphia; Verna Hughes, Delaware, and Ruth Lytle, St. Paul.

GET CHAIRS.

The Red Cross has just supplied two hundred new chairs to the hospital Red Cross building. The framework of the chairs is iron, making them most durable and yet easily handled and constructed so that they can be telescoped into small space. The new seats were first used on Tuesday evening at the picture show, which is a semi-weekly event at the Red Cross building.

READING ROOM.

A reading room, in connection with the library, has been fitted up at the Red Cross building. It is a cozily appointed room with the admonition of "silence" appearing in several places.

ON LEAVE.

Miss Alice Laymon, nurse, is on leave to her home in Newville, N. C.

TO PHILADELPHIA.

Nurse Miss Martha Jehle is on a five day pass to Philadelphia.

LOVE OR MONEY?

When you see a soldier spread all over a table with several sheets of paper in front of him and looking damn serious, right then and there you can make up your mind that he is writing on one of two subjects: Love or money.
