

MEDICAL SUPPLY

STOCKS ARE GOING UP.

EXTRA!!! Private Dudley M. Sarfaty, HIMSELF, of the Caduceus staff, has gone to New York on a furlough. Note: It is only reasonable to suppose that this item in the Caduceus last week will be the cause of Wall Street stock going up.

"OLD SOL" AGAIN.

Conversation overheard between Mess Sergeant Laske and a "Beautiful" Private:

Private: Hey, Sol, what the H—'s the matter with this Soup. It has had a queer taste all this month. Tasted much better last month.

Laskey: That's funny—it's the same soup.

Tent No. 2 now boasts of a regular honest-to-goodness window, due to the efforts of none other than Private Wolf. He is now buried deep in plans and specifications for a device by which he can turn out the light in his tent by a mere wiggle of the toe. It wouldn't surprise us to see it come to pass one of these days, judging from some of the other "modern improvements" he is accountable for.

Private Blackwell was strolling along Trade street one night when he was in the Medical Corps, and as he passed two fair maidens from Belmont he heard one of them (the school teacher) whisper to the other one, as she glanced at his hatcord with her astigmatic eye, "Well, now isn't he cute—and he's in the engineer's corps too." Since we have been transferred to the Q. M. C. he has been trying to fool them with a Cavalry hatcord.

Nick and Goldman have returned from their '25-day furlough."

Officers and enlisted men of the base hospital would do well to step into our office and see the wonderfully attractive calendar donated to us by the Nicol-Spencer Lumber Company of Gastonia, N. C.

Private McManus looked like "The Rookie from the 13th Squad" the other night in Liberty Park. Mac was a credit to "Li'l ole Pittsburg" in his campaign bonnet of four odd summers and three even ones, turned up in front with no hatcord at all, an overcoat that was as much too long as it was too tight, and a pair of breeches so baggy at the knees one would think he had a bag, rubber, hot water, over each of his knee caps. When interviewed all Mac had to say was, "Ah, what's the difference, we'll soon be dead."

When do we go home?

—Sergt. Thomas W. Goldman.

But, ah! "Greatness does not depend on size." Napoleon, if he were living today, would never get a job as a cop.

MEN ARE WARNED AGAINST GIVING NEWS.

(Special To The Caduceus.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—A change of Army Regulations relating to furnishing information regarding disabilities which might be made the basis of a claim against the government, and hence of importance to commissioned and enlisted personnel of Army hospitals, was issued by the War Department this week, as follows:

"824. (Changed by C. A. R. No. 70, W. D., 1918.) No information will be furnished by any person in the military service which can be made the basis of a claim against the government, except it be given as the regulations prescribe to the proper officers of the War, Treasury (including the Bureau of War Risk Insurance), or Interior Departments, or the Department of Justice or the United States Employees' Compensation Commission. Information concerning sick and wounded officers and enlisted men will be freely conveyed to allay the anxiety of friends; and when, in the opinion of the surgeon, the condition of an officer or enlisted man, by reason of injury or disease is serious or is such as to indicate the probability of fatal termination, the surgeon will promptly communicate the fact, by telegraph or mail as circumstances warrant, to the person designated by the officer or soldier to be notified in case of emergency. If the surgeon has no record of the name and address of such person, he will obtain the information from the officer or soldier or from his organization or station commander in the most expeditious manner practicable. The fact of death may be communicated to relatives, but not circumstances connected therewith, which could be made use of in prosecuting claims against the government. If any person in the military service has knowledge of facts pertaining to the service of an individual who is an applicant for a pension, or for compensation under the War Risk Insurance Act, he may upon request, if not pecuniarily interested, furnish a certificate or affidavit setting forth his knowledge, but such certificate or affidavit will be furnished only to the Adjutant General of the Army to be forwarded to the proper officer of the Interior Department or of the Treasury Department, Record evidence will be furnished by the War Department only.
