

13 Students Elected To Chapter of Nat'l Honor Society Here

Seven Are From Senior Class

High Point Branch of National Organization Holds Open Meeting In Chapel To Announce New Members.

Thirteen new members, seven of whom are seniors and the remaining of junior standing, were publicly chosen members of the local chapter of the National Honor Society at an open meeting of that organization in the auditorium Monday morning, February 25th. It is a custom of the society to announce their new members twice a year, this being usually done before the student body. The Monday election was, however, the first of its kind this year, and a great deal of interest has been manifested in the selection.

Those seniors who were made members at this time are Raymond Ritchie, Frances Douglas, Virginia Hunt, Wilma Welborn, Mayna Allen, Robert Hubbard, and William Coble. The juniors are: Ivan Crissman, Thomas Carpenter, Adelaide Crowell, Rose Askew, Sarah Jarrett, and Marion Williams.

The president of the society, Mary Elizabeth Harlee, presided over the meeting. She explained the purpose at the opening of the exercises, and then announced that Robert Davis would read the devotional. After this, each old member of the chapter, all of whom were sitting on the stage, answered the roll call with a quotation that had some as its subject something for which the society stands. Eloise Best, secretary, called the roll.

The president then told the students how the National Honor Society was first formed. She said

BOOKMOBILE VISITS SCHOOL WEDNESDAY

Is Unique Representative of National Publishers Asso. Mr. Brockman In Charge.

On Wednesday morning, February 27, the "Bookmobile" was a visitor at the high school. This unique automobile is the representative of the National Association of Book Publishers.

This bookmobile is a display of library, and bookselling catalogs, reference books, periodicals, periodical indexes, furniture, supplies, and promotion material.

Its purpose is to visit librarians and booksellers throughout the length and breadth of the land. It is to be used for the demonstration, display and sale of as complete an assortment of the working tools of the two allied professions as the space permits. It also aims to be a sort of information bureau upon subjects pertaining to library work and bookselling.

The bookmobile, which visited the school on Wednesday, is in charge of Mr. Charles R. Brockman, who is assisted by Mr. George W. Stewart.

Mr. Owens saw the bookmobile when it was here, and he declared that he was deeply interested in

GIRL'S FORMALLY ADOPT CODE AT MONDAY MEET

Work of Committee is Accepted—New Members of Girls' Council Are Presented.

The girls' code was formally adopted at the girls' meeting Monday and the new members of the girls' council were presented.

Elizabeth Ragan had the devotional. She read an extract from the "Secret of Beauty" by S. D. Gordon. She also used Phillipians 4:8 which is, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Helen Osborn, president of the girls' council, presented the newly elected members. There are two representatives from each class: seniors, Helen Osborn, and Elizabeth Ragan; juniors, Rose Askew, and Nell McMullan; sophomores, Helen Marshall and Anna Laura Patterson; freshmen, Mary Bulla, and Victoria Thomas.

A girl's interpretation of the code was given by Virginia Diffe. She

Study Of Diseases Made By Students Of Science Classes

Posters and Booklets Are Made Illustrating Spread of Germs; Other Interesting Work Done.

The science department of the high school has been studying some very interesting subjects during the last two weeks. In Miss Greenwood's general science classes, the pupils have written to the State Board of Health for laws on health. One subject that was taken up in detail by these classes was the making of clothing materials. Some of the girls dressed dolls to illustrate the dress of different races. Experiments to determine one material from another have also been made. When the class took up the study of disease germs, they made booklets showing how to check such a spread of germs.

The students of Miss Tucker's classes have also studied the spread of disease germs. Posters were made showing how disease germs spread by flies, mosquitoes, coughing, sneezing, using public towels and drinking cups, putting articles like pens and pencils in the mouth, and by ash cans standing in the yards. Oral reports were made on the most common diseases. The chemistry classes of this same teacher have been writing essays which will be sent off at an early date to compete in the national chemistry contest.

Mr. Alston's physics class is completing a miniature house that

H. P. STUDENTS ATTEND ASHEVILLE CONFERENCE

Misses Meador and Harris, Faculty Advisers, Attend; Local People Take Part In Discussion.

Rose Askew Elected Secretary

The North Carolina Student Council Congress held its second annual meeting in the new senior high school at Asheville, N. C., on Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2. Representing the High Point high school at this meeting were Rose Askew, Jane Hess Weaver, and Wilbur Hutchins, members of the student council, and Misses May Meador and Janet Harris, faculty advisers. Rose Askew was elected secretary of the congress.

At the first meeting on Friday, the delegates were welcomed by Henry Wood, president, and Mr. Lee Edwards, principal of the Asheville high school.

Discussions were the chief feature of the second session which was held on Friday night. Greensboro led in the discussion on the honor system; and High Point delegates talked on constructive work in the school.

Saturday morning was taken up with a discussion of the following

Shakesperian Play Acted In Study Of Literature And Life

Students Cooperate Wholeheartedly in Playing Henry V; Much Talent Is Shown.

The junior English classes under Miss Beard have been doing some very interesting work during the past week with the Shakesperian play "Henry V." In order to obtain as much of the true drama as possible, each group elected a cast of characters, who presented about one act each day. Without attempting to memorize their lines, they read expressively, trying not to keep their eyes upon the book constantly. The weak points of the play were shown when long, monotonous speeches were read, but on the other hand, the reading brought out dramatic value which otherwise might have been overlooked.

A chart, showing the degrees of effectiveness in reading each had attained, was drawn upon the blackboard, and daily arguments took place in each section as to whether various students should be given a superior mark.

Miss Beard hopes by this to give her pupils a better understanding of drama in general and of this play in particular.

SEVEN STUDENTS TAKE STATE LATIN CONTEST

The annual state-wide Latin contest was held in this school Friday morning. Miss Edith Barker head of the Latin department, supervised the examination for which the time from 9 to 12 o'clock was allowed. Those taking the test gathered in the cafeteria at 9, and were allowed to leave only when they had completed their work. The following were contestants: Marion Williams, Ruby Hicks, Anita Kerr, Mayna Allen, Beulah Lavender, Eloise Best and Franklin Surratt.

The High Point papers will be sent to Chapel Hill where they will be graded. The results will be announced soon after.

Dual Debate With Greensboro

Frances Douglas, Wilbur Hutchins, Raymond Ritchie and Margaret Andrews Will Represent High Point.

After the try-outs on Friday afternoon, February 22, Frances Douglas, Raymond Ritchie, Margaret Andrews, and Wilbur Hutchins, were chosen by the judges to represent High Point high school in the triangular debate, which will take place April 5th. The query of the debate will be: "Resolved, That the United States Should Join the World Court."

Frances Douglas and Raymond Ritchie, who will uphold the affirmative side, will debate against Winston-Salem here. Margaret Andrews and Wilbur Hutchins will go to Greensboro to argue the negative side of the same question.

The school whose debaters win both sides of the query will send delegates to Chapel Hill to compete for the championship of the state.

These debaters are very well qualified for the important places they are to hold. Frances Douglas, a member of the National Honor Society, and associate editor of the POINTER, was in the triangular debate when she was a freshman; Raymond Ritchie is president of the senior class and of the Oratio club; Margaret Andrews, president of the senior Girl Reserves and manager of the girls' basket ball team, was in the triangular debate last year; Wilbur Hutchins is president of the student council and a member of the Oratio club.

Besides the triangular debate a dual debate has been arranged between High Point high school

FLAG CONTEST DRAWS MANY ENTRIES HERE

Thirty Students Will Compete For Large Prizes Offered By Hearst Newspapers.

The national flag contest, of which accounts have been carried in the last several issues of THE POINTER, is well on its way at present, and according to Miss Lindsay, who is in charge of it at this school, there will be large number of contestants. Thirty students have entered up to date, the last day for entry having been Thursday, February 28th. Of this number of contestants, nine are boys.

These thirty students will try for the large prizes early in April. After the six best compositions on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory," three from the boys and three from the girls, have been selected, the successful ones will have about two weeks in which to memorize the essays. These they will present before the public, and the city winner will be chosen. These winners will continue in the race in district, regional, and finally, in the country-wide contests, until they are eliminated. The grand prize for the contest is a tour of the world, with all expenses paid, and with spending money furnished. There are four of these, two to go to boys and the others to girls. Other valuable prizes for the different championships are also offered.

Several of the contestants have ordered small pamphlets which contain information which will be
