

FRESHMEN LEAD ON BOTH HONOR ROLLS

Juniors and Sophomores Tie For Second Place—Seniors Are Fourth

With the ending of the first semester, the freshman class is found to have placed a larger number of students on the honor roll than any other class. The first year students lead with an enviable 62. Juniors and sophomores run a close race for second place, the former having 35 and the latter 32. The seniors come last with 24 making the honor roll.

The third six-week's period shows nearly the same figures for the various classes. The sophomores, however, won the juniors with 41 to 34. This time the freshmen lead with 63, and the seniors bring up the last with 27. In considering these numbers, allowance must be made for the difference in enrollment in each of the four classes, the first two always outnumbering the upper classes.

The following students made the "A," "B," and "C" semester honor rolls:

Garland Discovers End Of Gatewood Avenue

One student of High Point High now knows a little more about the topography of that portion of High Point immediately adjacent to the high school than he did before last Tuesday night. Jeddy Garland again breaks into print with a mad prank, this time for having tried to drive his car into a ploughed field.

Young Garland, dashing down Gatewood Avenue in his father's Packard sedan, was unfamiliar with the territory. It was just at dusk, too dark to see well, and not dark enough for the headlights to be effective. Consequently, when a row of posts guarding the end of the blind street rose before him, he smashed through this slight obstacle and landed in the ploughed field, up to the hub in mud. (The car remained in the field until the next morning).

Benjamin Franklin, the wise author of "Poor Richard's Almanac" once said, "Experience keeps a dear school, but some people will learn from no other." It begins to look as though we had some of these kinds of people in our school. But, at least, one of them will not drive a car down a blind street without knowing where he is going.

SMOKE (John Hall)

The smoke came pouring out of the chimney in billowy rolls; it hung over the roof like rain clouds. From the chimney top it came in ever increasing puffs like waves rolling up on the shore of an ocean. It was so heavy that it seemed to lie in folds about the chimney. Suddenly a quick puff of wind came and all the wisps and clouds of smoke were blown away, leaving the chimney looking bare and lonely. Some day you watch the smoke as it comes from a chimney. Doesn't it look like something alive that is trying to get free as it jerks and springs in quick puffs? Doesn't it look like some giant dragon that has been mortally wounded and is writhing in pain? Look at the smoke from a chimney some day, and see if it isn't true.

"Blow, blow, thou winter wind, Thou art not so unkind As man's ingratitude; Thy tooth is not so keen, Because thou art not seen, Although thy breath be rude."

One good word can warm three winter months.
