

Third Year Home Ec Girls Offered Practical Course

Pianist Pleases Large Audience

Dot Lewis, widely known and talented sophomore pianist, appeared as a soloist with the Winston-Salem Civic Orchestra when it recently gave a performance in High Point.

Dark-haired Dot, with orchestral accompaniment, played the third movement of Beethoven's Third Concerto and was graciously received by the large audience present.

The young pianist has also accepted an invitation to play with the North Carolina Symphony again this year, at some time early in May.

BISON— WILDCATS FRIDAY NIGHT

"Moe" Harris, Richard Crowder, Bill Hunsucker, and "Ig" Ellington will all have to be carefully watched by the Charlotte team if they expect to keep the game in hand.

It was recently learned that technical fouls can be called on the spectators at the basketball games. Student participation is always enjoyed at the games, but when the crowd raises such a din that the members of the team become unnerved while shooting their personal foul shots, the officials may step in and take matters in hand. Such unsportsmanlike conduct is considered unnecessary and can, in cases of tight games, cause a favored team to loose.

New Jazz Band Is Organized

"The Dreamsters," recent addition to high school organizations, is a jazz band, composed of nine students. The forthcoming amateur show and the Beta Club dances are to be highlighted by this band.

A near complete orchestration is represented with Bill Honbarrier, Earl Kearns, and Robert Brady doubling on the saxophone and clarinets. Fred Conally, David Wagoner, and Charles McConkey are in the brass section. The rhythm section is made up of Spencer Hurley on the slap-bass, Ray Wadell on the drums, and Clyde Connor at the piano. Vocalist for the group is Betty Sue Coltrane.

The band has a large repertoire of both swing and smooth numbers. Much work has been done to make the organization something special.

Many Scholarships Available To Seniors

If you are looking for a scholarship, you will find notices posted on the first floor bulletin board, announcing a number of these available to seniors.

An outstanding scholarship of $1,000 is offered to girls by Mary Baldwin college, Staunton, Virginia.

For boys scholarships are available at M. I. T., Rollins, and Union college. If you are interested in any of these offers, get in touch with your principal or write for information to the dean of the college which you prefer.

A program especially designed to meet the possible needs of every girl after graduation from high school is being offered to the third year home economics classes during this term, under the direction of Miss Mary Ella Ingram.

In the fall the girls began their work by studying the standard rules of relationships required in every vocation. They planned their own weddings, were married (figuratively speaking), and have just recently learned to cook for two. In addition, they have had practice in preparing for special occasions such as buffet suppers, teas, bridal showers, and picnics. They are now acquiring valuable knowledge in regard to planning and completely furnishing their homes.

When the home economic students finish this course, they will be expected to know how to buy each article needed in the furnishing of these homes.

During the early spring they plan both to work and also to hear lectures given by experienced nurses on the subject of child care. Later they plan to learn the fundamentals of sewing.

ONLY A HAMSTER

A great catastrophe has struck room 201-A. First of all, Marie gave birth to eight babies, all of whom died the following day. Then as if to bring things to a climax, she killed her husband (a case of murder in the first degree) by a deadly bite.

But does Mrs. Williams give up? No, she has already written to the Lonely Hearts' Club to secure another husband for Marie. In case you're wondering, Marie is a hamster! Hamster? . . . She's only a rat-like animal used for experiments in biology lab 201-A.

New Books Added To School Library

A new shipment of books, including the third new set of encyclopedias bought for the school this year, has recently been received by the library. Included in the list are horse and dog stories, popular biographies, books on electricity, a dictionary of American history and other historical texts to supplement those used in the classrooms.

Better lighting in the library is the main project undertaken by Mrs. Poston for this year. Although new lights are not to be installed in the entire building, she feels that the chances are good for improving the lighting situation in the library.
