Song.

1. Sailing, Sailing, over the bounding main
 O'er many a stormy sea we've come
 To this one goal and aim
 Forward, forward, ever we'll carry on.
 Then finally in life when we've done our very best,
 We'll know the fight is won!
 2. We are jolly good sailors
 We are jolly good sailors
 We are jolly good sailors
 We want you all to know.

Welcome

My friends, we, who are about to disembark from this, our last voyage on this particular sea of life, salute you.

It may seem to you and to us that we have lived, that we are living now; perhaps when old age comes, we shall look back upon these youthful years with tears of anguish and regret. Our attitude at that time, however, will depend upon the manner in which we shall have spent the better part of our life. Let us endeavor as a class and as individuals, to so live that the world will be benefitted by our sojourn here.

Wherever we may be in the School of Life, we shall always strive to reach our goal—to be truly educated. Our greatest object in attaining an education is to better fit ourselves for the duties and responsibilities of a noble and useful life. Then let us realize that "We live in deeds, not years; that the most lives who think most, feel noblest, act the best."

To our honored principal and the instructors who have thus far assisted us in acquiring the education which we now possess, we are humbly grateful.

We realize today that we have the future before us, that we have everything to gain and nothing to lose. We have battled as fiercely as any sailors on the stormiest of seas the tasks which have been set before us. We have tried to build success upon our failures and we shall continue to do so.

To the visitors here assembled for the purpose of witnessing our landing after this long and toilsome voyage, and for the further purpose, we trust, of enjoying our efforts to entertain you, we extend a cordial welcome. Your interest in us, manifested by your presence here, is encouraging.

So, we who are preparing to disembark, salute you.

CLASS POEM

"A Voyage Completed"

It was early in October
When our ship set out to sea

them settling down and tackling with vim and vigor the problems that are eternally bobbing up. Soon they hold their first crew meeting. Miss Ernestine Shippe, who is destined later to desert the ship and become the wife of Manley B. Fisher, and Miss Boliek are elected sponsors, with Paul McMillan, President, and Mrs. R. A. Ashworth, Grademother. The sailors are entertained at numerous parties and have many gay times. A very outstanding event of this voyage is the Popularity Contest, in which one of that group wins.

At length Voyage 9 is in progress. The days of trials and tribulations are more numerous, but the faithful crewmen push steadily forward. The waters grow stormier, and more difficult. However, continuing to follow the lead of Paul McMillan and the assistance of Miss Stroupe and Mr. Jervis as sponsors and Mrs. Vick as Grademother, the band is made fit to forge on to Voyage 10. The trip through the 10th Grade is guided by J. C. Avery as President. Each undertaking of the voyage is aided and avetted by Miss Parker, sponsor, and Mrs. W. P. Aycock, Grademother. It seems as though this voyage is to be a very memorable one. The annual State Triangular Debate rolls on the slippery deck and three of the seamen enter the contest. Following the old custom, the jolly Juniors begin to prepare for the Junior-Senior Banquet, and in May of that year the Class of '32 are guests to the Pirates of '33 at "Ye Pirate Banquet" in "Ye Old Pirate Hall." In return for this delightful occasion the class of '32 entertained the pirates at a picnic.

At last the hard working crew is gliding out of the harbor to complete successfully or unsuccessfully the last and most memorable voyage. Hoge Vick is elected President and again they are fortunate enough to have as Sponsor, Miss Parker who has won the love and admiration of that group which she has successfully manned for two years. The class chooses little Mary Lou Driver and Billy Black as its mascots, and it is they who cheer them in their moments of doubt. It is last but by no means least that Mrs. Geo. Vick is chosen their grademother. Because of her fine spirit of cooperation, her unfaltering interest in their welfare and her warm friendship, she is held dear to that crew. Once again three of the class are representatives in the State Triangular Debate, and this time they receive four of the six votes. After Christmas the seamen devote a large part of their time in the successful presentation of the Senior Play, "Joan of Arkansas." The crew finds many things to contribute to its overflowing cup of happiness. The happy event arrives at last, and the crew is entertained at a May Day Banquet by the Class of '34. In return, '33 entertains '34 at a picnic. The crew is given parties by Mrs. Vick and the mothers of the Mascots.

A gray dawn is beginning to break, the white clouds overhead are flying, and the seagulls are screaming. A light flashes on the distant shore, and that light is the goal for which they have striven. The fine voyages of cooperating and working diligently are nearly completed, and soon they must each tread the way alone. The staunch ship has weathered every storm and the prize they seek is nearly won. However, it is with a feeling of sadness not akin to pain that comes stealing over them as they look back through those eleven happy years. But they know as they embark on the longest cruise that they have done their best. May they sail forth into the Ocean of Life and onward steer without any sign of doubt and fear. And when they sink into the depths of despair, may they repeat those encouraging words of that brave captain who cried to his crew when all seemed lost:

"Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea,
Our hopes, our hearts, are all with thee,
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers,
Our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee—are all with thee."

Song To Mascots

(Tune State College Song)

- Mary Lou we love you and little Billy too,
Our dear Mascots of 1933.
- As the years come and go
We will think of both of you
As the dearest of Mascots to choose
Here's wishing you
Success and joy too
In everything you try to do
And in years to come yet
We never shall forget
Our dear Mascots of 1933.

Superlatives

1. Our prettiest is Miss Pansy Jones,
Admitting this we make no bones.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

- In step with her is our J. C.,
Most handsome, oh, most handsome he.
2. We're turning now to popular folk,
Our Sara Creech and William Holt.
When popularity wants to shine,
They are the finest of the fine.
3. Look coming here, a girl, a boy,
To call them ours gives us much joy.
They are the cutest to be found,
Our Freddy Creech and Marie Brown.
4. Ah! here we see our modern pair,
A lad so bold, a maid so fair.
The biggest flirts, whatever you will,
Our Elsie Earp and dear old Bill.
5. Of course we have our babes here
To call all of us they are so dear
They are the best that we could pick,
Our Katherine and Hogie Vick.
6. Right here, dear friends, will you list to the ditty,
We're speaking of two whom we term the most witty,
'Tis Ruby with William, who's coming I think
By many a wise crack they've come o'er the brink.
7. O bashful ones come and see
How many people look at thee
Here's Lillian, though so shy she be
And where art thou? Come on J. C.
8. One says you're conceited from toe up to head
If conceit were consumption, my dears you'd be dead.
But be not dismayed by this, Elsie and Bill,
We love you, have loved you and always will.
9. But when, my friends, it comes to style,
We ask you all to pause awhile
It takes not long for you to see
The best dressed are Clarine, J. C.
10. The most original we enjoy
Are Bessie girl, and Billy boy
We have these two day out, day in
To be original and make us grin.
11. In choo-ing these we've made no mistake
We know it and have no apology to make.
The best all around are Hazel and Harold
As good all around as the hoops of a barrel.
12. In picking the two for our most attractive
We've chosen two chaps who are both very active.
They attract like two magnets, each one at his will,
To name them we'd say, Pretty Pansy and Bill.
13. Most studious boy, most studious girl
What these two know puts your head in a whirl.
It's Hoge and Bessie to whom we all go
When something is lacking that we ought to know.
14. To find the most talkative we vied and we fought,
We're all the most talkative, everyone thought.
But finally we found two better ones still,
Big-talking Sara and loud-mouth Bill.
15. The laziest ones in our class
form a pair

Who do a little bit here and a little bit there.
They're James and Marie, if you call them by name,
But lazy or not, they get there the same.

16. These the most amorous that we know
With love they keep us on the go.
It's Elsie and Bill that we have reference to,
So Elsie and Bill, here's our best to you.
17. It's great to be able to do things alone,
And never depend on a wee, single one;
You're the most independent,
Hazel, J. T.
As much independent as two folks can be.
18. You hurl the ball and run the race,
Meet every sportsman face to face.
You're more athletic than the rest,
Paeton and Dorothy, our very best.
19. The most ambitious, gee! that's great!
No one could want for a better trait.
To higher things they both aspire,
May Hazel and Hoge set the world on fire.
20. Just look at these two, did you ever see such?
They're dignified, yes, very much, very much.
If you stay around them it's not hard to see,
Our dignified Daisy, her partner J. T.
21. In speaking of talent for doing things well,
Our Hazel and William are no less than swell.
They can do this, and they can do that—
They're talented, I tell you, with this and with that.
22. My friends, when you want to get something done
And have to depend on a different one,
In dependability these can't be beat—
To work with J. C. and with Ruby's a treat.
23. You've heard of people who're crazy no doubt,
And often you wonder just how they get out.
Well, these are the craziest, but don't get alarmed,
Poor Ruby and William, they'll do you no harm.
