

Theodore L. Plair, '28.

Soph: "Have you ever seen a 14 karat key?"

Frosh.: "No; but I've eaten lots of 10 carrot bowls of soup."

"I've been framed," protested the doomed man.

And he made a sorry picture as he was hung.

"I wouldn't drink out of that cup if I were you," said the little boy at the pump. "That is Bessie's cup and she has just been drinking out of it."

"Oh," said the gay young man from the city, as he drained the cup. "I don't mind. I feel honored to drink out of Bessie's cup. Who is Bessie? Your sister?"

"No; my dog."

—E. Endeavorer.

There Must Be Insight.

After carefully viewing the lungs of our pet dog, "Obie," with a very powerful microscope, Drewey Scales, our leading biologist, exclaimed: "I've seen the seat of his pants."

The student gets the paper,
The school gets the fame;
The printer gets the money,
The staff gets the blame.

—Exchange.

They were climbing a lofty peak of the Alps, and she was standing a few feet above him. She turned around and gazed in wonderment "What," he asked, "do you see?"

"Far, far below," she cried, "I see a long, white sheet, stretching like a paper ribbon almost back to our hotel."

"Ha, ha!" he ejaculated. "It's that hotel bill overtaking us."

—Clipped.

Same Old Story.

Chemistry and Math make up exams were hell in the Administration Building.

Flapper (to drug store clerk):

"I want a green lipstick, please."

D. S. C.: "What do you want a green lipstick for?"

Flapper: "Don't be stupid, I've got a date tonight with a traffic cop!"

—The Agnostic.

"Bring me another sandwich, please."

"Will there be anything else?"

"Yes, a paper weight. That last sandwich blew away."

"Some vegetables surely are large."

"How so?"

"I've seen three or four policemen asleep on a single beet."

Trig. Prof.: "Fools ask questions no wise men can answer."

Freshmen: "Sure, that's why we all flunk."

Kupid: "I want a couple of pillow cases."

Clerk: "What size?"

Kupid: "I don't know, but I wear a size 7 hat."

A New Cure.

"Dear doctor:—My pet billy goat is seriously ill from eating a complete leather-bound set of Shakespeare. What do you prescribe?"

Answer: "Am sending Literary Digest by return mail."

"Papa, what do you call a man who drives a car?"

"It depends on how close he comes to me."

"ONE ON YOU."

Did you ever
Go to a party
Not feeling especially well,
But when you got there
Everyone greeted you
With a smile
And you felt better,
And made cracks,
And everybody laughed.
So you pulled your good ones
Together with some
Not so good,
And they laughed heartily
Till you found yourself
To be the life of the party;
And your cranium
Expanded
And continued expanding
Till you reached home
You had not
Tucked in all your shirt?
I thank you.

THE ALEXANDER DUMAS READING CIRCLE

J. T. Wilson, '29.

The Reading Circle met on the usual meeting night.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Mr. W. W. Jones. In his address Mr. Jones made mention of the three great principles upon which the organization was founded; namely, scholarship, character and actual reading. Those of us whom the founders have honored to place on roll, pledge loyalty to the organization and shall endeavor to live up to those great principles.

After the business part of the meeting was over a brief account of the life of Alexander Dumas was given by Mr. Scales and others.

A discussion of the works of Alexander Dumas was led by Mr. H. L. Marshall. His best writings seem to be found in the two books, "The Count of Monte Christo" and "The Three Musketeers."

Brief Resume.

Alexander Dumas was born in 1802 and died in 1870. He married an actress, Ida Ferrier, in 1842, and was father of two children by her. His married life was very unhappy because of his wife. He was not an original writer, but took up and completed the work of Eugene Sue, his predecessor. He justified himself in this act in the following statements:

"All human phenomena are public property."

"The man of genius does not steal, he simply conquers."

"Every one arrives in his turn and at his hour, seizes what his ancestors have left, and puts it in new shapes and combinations."

With such an efficient corps of officers the club is looking forward to one of the most successful years that they have ever known.

Our motto is: "We weigh our men; not count them."
