

By Teddy Wilson

Let's Begin With Poetry

Mary had a little lamb,
You've heard it oft before—
And then she passed her plate again
And had a little more.—(Selected.)

Crossed Wires

Fond mother: He's getting along so well in school; he learn French and algebra. "Now, son, say "How do you do to the lady in algebra."—(Exchange.)

An Exception

Physics Prof: When two bodies come together, is heat generated?
Freshie: No sir; because I hit a guy yesterday and he knocked me cold.

Lum: "Aren't the acoustics fine?"
Chink: You bet. I'll have to congratulate them before I leave.

Ski-U-mah.

Wearing Apparel

She: What will the channel swimmer do for clothes?
He: Oh! she carries her trunks.

Same, Only Different.

Old Maid's motto: Never let a fool kiss
you.
Flapper's motto: Never let a kiss fool
you.

He: The worse thing I ever saw was a man-eating tiger.
She: I am not surprised at that, because some men will eat anything.

She Wasn't So Hot

Livingstonian: If I ever hear of you taking my girl to a cabaret again I'll kill
you.

Smithsonian: If I ever do I'll deserve it.

Directions.

Tramp: Doc! How can I get rid of these cooties?

Doc: Take a bath in sand and rub down in alcohol. The cooties get drunk and kill each other throwing stones.

She: What was the name of the selection
he just played?

He: That was "Silk Stockings."

She: "I thought so because it had so many runs in it.—Blue Ox.

Bob.: How did Ruth dress for the prom?

Ted: Continuously.

A Sure Sign

Her: You don't love me any more!

Him: Why do you say that, Buntie?

Her: Well, when you change gears now your hand never slips off the lever onto my knee!

Nothing Fresh

Customer: Are these fresh fish?

Butcher: No ma'am; these won't embarrass you at the table.—(University of Washington.)

Gaining Strength

Seminarian: I think I'll wait till Christmas and hang up my stockings.

Co-ed: By that time you won't need to.
they will stand alone

Extremes

Bully: I hear you have a cute little girl.
Is she faithful?

No; my girl is too good to be true.

Prof: I told you yesterday I'd give you one day to hand in that theme.

Freshie: Yes, but I thought I could pick any day.—(State Lion).

Coming Through the Rye

Can a body kiss a body when he's full of rye?

That depends upon the girlie—he can only try.

A BOOK OF POEMS

Come, boys and girls who are in school,
Don't waste your leisure like a fool;
Here is a chance to spend your time,
Making money while in your prime.
Just sell the neighbor at your gate
A book of poems of '28.
